Bomb explodes

Filipino extremists given blame

By David Gosnell

VENICE — A bomb that exploded outside the office of Dr. Arturo Taca on Tuesday is thought to be the work of Filipino extremists who support ousted dictator Ferdinand Marcos. The bomb did slight damage to the building at 603 Broadway. "I think it's people who have been associated with Marcos," Taca, 42, said Wednesday night. He said some Filipinos in the St. Louis area resent his support of President Corason Aquino. If political, the bombing was an isolated incident, Emmanuel Quintos, administrative assistant to the Philippine Embassy in Washington said this morning. "He might have hurt somebody's feelings. And you know Filipinos, how temperamental they get," Quintos said, but added it is too early to draw conclusions about the motivation behind the bombing. Taca, a Filipino urologist, is active in Philippine politics. He opposed Marcos, who was overthrown in a 1986 revolution and is in exile in Hawaii. Taca said he was active for many years in the anti-Marcos movement in the U.S. He said he remains active in Philippine affairs and was appointed in January to the Philippine Mission at the United Nations. "They (opponents) think I'm really a communist. Some people in that group are dead-in-the-wool Marcos people. They probably intended to blow the whole thing up," Taca said. An investigation into the motivation for the bombing is in progress, said Victor Herbert, supervisor with the Bomb and Arson Squad of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, St. Louis. "We're strictly proceeding on the fact that an explosive device was detonated," Herbert said today. Taca said the St. Louis Philippine community has been "drawn along political lines" for many years and that has not changed, despite the overthrow of Marcos. He also said some VENICE — A pipe bomb exploded on the west side of Dr. Arturo Taca's office building at 603 Broadway, at 10 p.m. Tuesday. Agents from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms at about 3 p.m. Wednesday examined pieces of pipe recovered at the scene. They confirmed the pieces were remnants of a bomb. "We heard the explosion (from) inside the police station and saw a big puff of white smoke hanging in the air," Venice Police Sgt. Birli Reed said. "At first we thought it was a transformer blowing." The explosion blew out a few bricks and some siding and damaged a gas meter, according to police. Whether a timing device was used to set off the explosion has not been determined. Taca lives in Chesterfield, Mo.

12-to-1 financial edge for Costello

By David Rocks
P-RJ Washington bureau

WASHINGTON — St. Clair County Board Chairman Jerry Costello continues to dominate fund-raising in the race to succeed Rep. Melvin Price, D-Bellefonte, according to records filed with the Federal Election Commission. Costello raised $258,236 last year. He also transferred $155,194 raised during his last County Board campaign, for a total of $413,430 in 1987 campaign receipts.

His closest competitor in 21st Congressional District fund raising for the March 15 Democratic primary, Madison County Auditor Pete Fields, raised $21,446 last year. Fields also loaned his campaign nearly $11,000, and the campaign received $786 in other loans, for total campaign receipts of $33,107. (See MONEY, Page 10A)

Sleet, snow delay 'Great Congressional Debate'

GRANITE CITY — Ice, rain and snow resulted in the cancellation of the "Great Congressional Debate" on Wednesday. The debate is rescheduled for Wednesday, Feb. 10. Notified Wednesday afternoon of the cancellation, representatives for all four congressional candidates said they would attend the Feb. 10 debate. "Yes, I will confirm that I will be there," candidate Jerry Costello, St. Clair County Board chairman, said Wednesday. The debate's location will be the Granite City High School Gymnasium, 3100 Madison Ave. Originally slated for the auditorium, a scheduling conflict resulted in the debate's location change. It is unfortunate that the weather inconvenienced so many people last night, but I expect a good crowd next Wednesday because there is so much interest in the race," said Jack C. Ventimiglia, executive editor of East Side Publications. The debate is being sponsored by the Granite City Press-Record/Journal in cooperation with the Suburban Journals and Granite City School District 9.

The debate will involve a panel of five reporters asking questions — some submitted by the public — of the four Democratic Party candidates for congress.

Wiley to be search consultant

By Bill Bagby
Staff writer

BELEVILLE — A man interviewed to be interim chancellor of Belleville Area College will act as a consultant in the search for a new head of the school. Walter Dean Wiley, an SIUE professor from Glen Carbon, has been hired to serve as a consultant in finding a replacement for former Chancellor Bruce Wissore, who was fired Dec. 12 and given a teaching job at the school. Wiley will work as an independent contractor and be paid a $7,000 salary and up to $1,000 for expenses.

THE ISSUES

Wiley, along with B.J. Davis, former Granite City School District 9 superintendent, and John Robertson, St. Louis Community College, were interviewed Dec. 16 by BAC's Board of Trustees for the interim chancellor post. Davis was hired early the next day. Wiley has conducted searches for the state, SIU and McKendree College. According to a five-phase search plan adopted by BAC trustees, Wiley will:
— Implement a search plan;
— Serve as chairman and preside over meetings of

Meeting cut short for game

VENICE — The city's aldermen ended their meeting in 10 minutes so they could attend the Venice-Madison basketball game Tuesday. The aldermen went through the agenda, paid bills and adjourned. Each of the eight aldermen is paid $50 per meeting.

"When I became an alderman in 1973 it was $50 per meeting and still is," Mayor Tyrone Echols said. Echols was invited to attend the basketball game by Venice High School. He and his wife attended Madison High School and he said his loyalties are divided, particularly since his daughter is a cheerleader there.

Candidates say unemployment worst problem

By Dave Gosnell
Staff writer

(Second in a series.)
GRANITE CITY — Lack of jobs is the worst problem in the 21st Congressional District, say the four Democratic Party candidates seeking the U.S. representative seat.

Illinois Department of Employment Security statistics show unemployment is a nagging problem throughout the district, and in its four most populous cities — Alton, 8.6 percent; Granite City, 10.4 percent; East St. Louis, 12.8 percent; and Belleville, 10.5 percent — all exceed the state unemployment rate average of 8.2 percent for December.

The candidates differ on which federal projects they would support in the district to curtail joblessness and there is considerable debate on the direction the area's economy should take.

Candidate Jerry Costello, 38, Belleville, is St. Clair County Board chairman and a longtime supporter of several large federal aid projects that have the potential to create jobs.

Costello is a key player in discussions to build the Metro Link light rail system to join the Metro East and St. Louis with passenger rail service. He also backs a proposal to add civilian air service to Scott Air Force Base, near Belleville.

Costello has said his priority as a congressman is to protect the area's defense industry, especially Scott and the Army's Regional Support Center in Granite City. He also backs most labor-supported issues such as a move to increase the minimum wage and legislation to meet plant closings.

But Costello stops short of supporting a bill before the U.S. Senate, sponsored by Sen. Paul Simon, a presidential aspirant from Makanda, to provide full employment to the nation's jobs.

"Where is the money going to come from?" Costello asked of Simon's full employment bill. He said he agreed in principle with Simon's bill but was not convinced there is money to pay for it.

The key to economic development in the district is to be involved with local government, Costello said. "I am going to be very active in local government. I'm going to be very involved with the people who are in leadership positions" locally, Costello said.

On East St. Louis, which has the district's highest unemployment rate, Costello said poor government is the chief cause of the community's economic problems.

"The main ingredients ... that you absolutely must have in order to have industry to want to locate to an area, you have to have good government and good public officials," East St. Louis has a confidence problem as far as the city government's concerned," Costello said. He also said crime and lack of services make East St. Louis unattractive to business.

"I don't have the answer to East St. Louis. It may take a restructuring of city government," Costello said.

Candidate Pete Fields, 42, Glen Carbon, is Madison County auditor. He said "jobs, jobs and jobs" are most on the minds of district voters.

"Generally ... this (area) considered to be in the rust belt, has suffered economic downturns — the steel industry, the oil industry and manufacturing — we've suffered. That's not news. It's time to recover from it and go on," Fields said.

Fields said the district cannot depend entirely on several large federal projects to get back on its feet economically.

"I'm not for pork barrel. I'm not for digging holes in East St. Louis. That's not the answer to long-term economic development. I think that a congressman can do many things," Fields said.

Fields said the area's resources are many and must be made known. "We have to take stock of many of the natural resources crossing through this district. We have the river, we have networks of railroads, we have interstate highways and we have many natural resources in this area. But it seems to me we have a cavalcade of agencies that deal with all the proposed economic development. Why can't a congressman bring these people together?" Fields asked.

Fields differs with Costello on several large project proposals requiring federal aid. He would not have supported the proposed light rail system and questions the use of Scott Air Force Base for civilian air service.

"I think it (civilian use) compromises some of the security of that base. I want Scott to remain as a viable military base," Fields said.

He said he was concerned that the military will not consider Scott for other military uses if it is also used for commercial purposes.

Fields, instead, advocates studying the possibility of building a proposed "reliability" airport in Bethalto or at St. Louis Downtown-Parks Airport in Cahokia.

"Those other alternatives won't compromise the security of Scott," he said. Referring to the rail link on the Illinois side being located in East St. Louis, Fields said the link will provide little economic benefit. (See CONGRESS, Page 1A)

Two parishes, schools are proposed for Granite City — A Catholic school and two churches may close in the city, a crowd of about 700 learned Jan. 28 at a "town hall-style" meeting.

If the consolidation of Sacred Heart, St. Joseph and St. Margaret Mary parishes is approved, Sacred Heart Church will be used for the worship center and St. Margaret Mary, with its more modern school buildings, for education and recreation.
St. Elizabeth Parish boundaries may be changed somewhat by the mergers.

Primary schools proposed
GRANITE CITY — A series of meetings is planned to explain a plan being considered to create primary and intermediate schools in District 9.

If the proposal is adopted by the School Board, four schools would house kindergarten through third grade students and four others would house fourth through sixth grade pupils. The remaining building, Frather School, would house both primary and intermediate students due to its size.

Alderman say ward changes needed
GRANITE CITY — Inequity among the city's wards may spur the city to change ward boundaries.

Second Ward Alderman Pat Schuman said at last week's City Council meeting he would like to see a "blue ribbon" committee study redistributing ward boundaries and populations.

Comments sought on AIDS rules

11 AIDS cases in county

Rules and regulations to implement Illinois' new AIDS laws have been proposed by the Illinois Department of Public Health and published in the Illinois Register.

Public comment on the 200 pages of draft rules will be accepted by the department until March 1 and six public hearings have been scheduled around the state in February to elicit input from interested persons.

"through the legislative process, Gov. James R. Thompson and the General Assembly provided us with many of the tools necessary to mount an effective state effort to halt the spread of acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS)," said Dr. Bernard J. Turnock, state health director.

Rules regarding pre-marital testing, written informed consent and counseling of persons being tested for evidence of exposure to the AIDS virus, standards of confidentiality, requirements for testing blood and human tissue for the virus that causes AIDS, and creation of an AIDS registry were published as emergency rules.

Non-emergency rules cover: contact tracing; laboratory requirements for AIDS antibody testing; testing of donated blood, sperm and tissue for AIDS antibodies and disposal and research of blood tested positive;

A requirement that hospitals and blood banks allow blood donors to designate who could receive their blood; labeling the body of a person who died of an infectious disease as an "infectious hazard"; establishing counseling and testing center requirements; and notification of school principals.

"As the governor indicated in signing the legislation, there are no easy answers or solutions to the problems associated with AIDS."

"We believe these rules embody the intent of the legislative package signed by the governor and strike a delicate balance — providing for aggressive public health programs to prevent and control AIDS in Illinois, and safeguarding the rights and confidentiality of persons infected or exposed. We have not sacrificed or compromised one for the other; we have provided for both," Turnock said.

"The contact tracing bill represents a foundation of the Illinois AIDS package."

"It allows the department to establish a program that continues voluntary testing and encourages contact notification of possibly exposed persons in a cost-efficient, manageable and noncoercive manner."

The number of confirmed AIDS cases in this area increased at a slower rate in 1987 than 1986, the Illinois Department of Public Health said this month.

Two new AIDS cases in Madison County were confirmed during 1987, said IDPH spokesman Tom Schaefer.

The total number of persons reported to have the full-blown AIDS disease since IDPH began tracking the fatal ailment in 1982 is now 11 in Madison County.

The Madison County AIDS toll has increased from seven since the end of 1985.

Statewide, the number of AIDS cases increased much more dramatically, nearly doubling over the past year.

The number of cases in the state at the end of 1986 was 740 — jumping to 1,457 at the end of December 1987, Schaefer said.

Most of them continue to be concentrated in the Chicago area, with Cook County accounting for 1,207 of the total.

"Partner notification supports the state's role in educating individuals on how to protect themselves and their loved ones from the spread of disease, balanced with the responsibility of government to intervene when necessary to break the chain of transmission," Turnock said.

Contact tracing calls on health care professionals to ask persons infected with the AIDS virus to either personally notify their past sexual or needle-sharing partners, or identify them confidentially.

Public health officials, either from local health departments or the state department where there is no local health department, will then attempt to contact those identified to warn them of potential exposure to the disease.

Turnock said the draft rules rely on physicians to fulfill their traditional disease-fighting role by counseling all those at risk of exposure to the AIDS virus and those testing positive for antibodies to AIDS virus, and notifying the department of all such positive results.

Those persons tested positive at the state's testing and counseling sites are to be counseled by health care professionals and encouraged to either report contacts so they could be warned about possible exposure to the virus, or notify them personally.

cases so far.
IDPH last year estimated the number of AIDS cases in Illinois would double every 10 to 12 months, but it now appears to have slowed to doubling every 12 to 14 months, Schaefer said.

The department has sponsored an extensive education and public health campaign to try to slow the spread of the disease in the state.

Free testing and counseling clinics and "hot lines," including one in Madison County, are funded by the state.

Groups most at risk — homosexuals, bisexuals and intravenous drug users who share needles — have been particularly targeted for assistance by the state.

Several new AIDS-related laws passed by the General Assembly this spring will require more extensive public health officials for community education units for school children and the pre-marital testing requirements which took effect Jan. 1.

After the first drafts of the rules and regulations were completed in early December, they were distributed to key legislators — district groups and some public health officials for comment.

These comments were considered before the rules were sent in late December to the Illinois Register for publication.
The public comment period for those rulemakings closes on March 1. Persons wishing to comment can either submit testimony in writing to the department or attend one of the public hearings.

The date, time and location of the public hearings are:
11 a.m., Feb. 19, State Capitol Building, Second Floor-Room 200, Springfield 62766.

Registration open for homebuilders seminar

Enrollment is now open for a workshop entitled, "From the Ground Up: A Seminar for Homebuilding Professionals," to be held Thursday, Feb. 18, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Collinsville Hilton.

The seminar is sponsored by the University of Illinois in conjunction with the Home Builders Association of Madison County, Home Builders Association of Southwest Illinois, and Metro East Area Realtors.

Keynote Roy L. Diez, editor in chief of Professional Builder, will discuss "What Sells in Today's Market?" Augmenting his presentation will be University of Illinois faculty and local experts who will cover such topics as how to talk to your lender, households are changing, are you taking on a serious trend in landscape design, new tax laws, trends in bath design, and the Small Homes Council.

The cost of the entire program is $25, which includes lunch. Advance registration is necessary and will be on a first-come basis.

To register for the seminar, persons may send their name, address, and a check for $25 made payable to U of I Extension Service In and Out Account. The University of Illinois of Illinois Extension Service, Box 427, Edwardsville, Ill. 62025.

Deadline for registration is Friday, Feb. 12. For more information, the Extension Office can be called at 656-8400.

The seminar is planned primarily for those in home building and related businesses. However, people who plan to build a home or undertake a major remodeling project will also find it helpful, the sponsor said.

LASTING EFFECTS

By Dr. Claude Hiles

A large percentage of the twenty percent of women with uncommonly sized feet have the problem of a narrow heel and a broad forefoot. In order to manufacture a shoe to fit that kind of foot, the producer must make a "combination-last" shoe. "Last" refers to the shape of the foot. It can be compared to the frame of an automobile. There are two basic types of feet, straight and curved. This is an important thing to remember for the person who has a foot problem. Women should look for shoes lasted to conform to the shape of their foot. However, most shoes are single-lasted. A combination-last shoe is more expensive and less stylish. Unfortunately, many women opt for style and pay for it with foot problems later.

When buying shoes for your children, be certain they support, not restrict, movement. Young children's feet have soft and pliable bones so that improperly fitted shoes can be damaging to normal development. Have your children's feet examined periodically by a podiatrist for preventive care. My office offers professional family foot care and convenience. Podiatric disorders are treated. Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gauen

Gauens celebrate 50th

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gauen celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Nov. 27.

A reception was held at Day's Inn, Edwardsville.

Gauen and the former Beulah Harding were married at St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Granite City, on Nov. 25, 1937, by the Rev. J.P. Jordan.

Gauen retired from Continental Can Co., St. Louis, after working there for 45 years.

They are the parents of six children: Barbara Ridenhower, Las Vegas, Nev.; Mary Frisse, Prince George, Va.; Ellen Dickey, Elkhart, Ind.; Lois Ganz, Columbia, Mo.; Robert Gauen, Ballwin, Mo.; and Nancy Norris, Granite City.

The couple has seven grandchildren.

Women's Club views music boxes

Nameeki Women's Club held its regular monthly meeting at the Harold Brown Recreational Center on Jan. 20, with Dolores Allen, president, presiding.

A dessert luncheon was served by Pearl Kennerly, Irma Taylor and Dolores Allen. Recognition was given to Marion Shelton and Verna Stuart who had birthdays in January.

Kennerly brought some of her music boxes and gave a brief description of them.

Allen reported on the district board meeting she attended in December at Our Lady of the Snows.

Shown was the film "Winning Wheels," which describes an organization for physically handicapped persons and how it raises money to be self-supporting. Memberships are available to the public and the dues help sustain its efforts, the president said.

Monte Carlo Whist was played. Winners were Blanche Blake, Bernadine Cooley, Marion Shelton and Irma Taylor. Also attending were Mildred Branding, Mildred Jungels, Dorothy McCauley, Millie Meek, Marion Mertz, Verna Stuart and Ella Wade.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward LaRue

Mr., Mrs. Edward LaRue observe 25th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. LaRue Sr., Pontoon Beach, celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary Dec. 27 with a reception at Grace Baptist Church, 2600 Edwards St.

Hosting the event were their children: Marine Lance, Cpl. Edward L. LaRue Jr., Japan, and Scott Alan and Sheila Jean LaRue, both of Granite City.

LaRue and his wife, the former Georgia Lee, were married Dec. 29, 1962, in Granite City.

He is employed at Nestle Food Inc., where he has worked for 24 years. Mrs. LaRue is employed by Happy Day Child Care, Granite City.

The couple has two granddaughters, Aundrea and Candace LaRue, both of Granite City.

New Hope plans events

Irene Kessler, worthy matron and Al Woodard, worthy patron, of New Hope Chapter 430, Order of Eastern Star, presided at the Jan. 15 meeting and announced forthcoming events.

She said the chapter would have a Country Store booth at the ham and bean dinner, sponsored by Masonic Lodge 835 at the Masonic Temple. Advance Night will be held at 8 p.m. Feb. 5, with those moving forward as officers to include Lucille Kalogerau, Lana Hall and Jolene Keel.

A letter from the Worthy Grand Matron J. Elaine Orr requested her official visit be scheduled for May 6, and also announced the death of Robert Sponsler on Nov. 19. He is a past worthy grand patron.

Louise Thompson, junior past matron, and Ellis Hackney, junior past patron, were presented and invited to be guests for the night. Two past worthy patrons and nine past worthy matrons were escorted and introduced, including Clyde Lee, worthy patron of Agnes Whitfield Chapter, and Earl Fisher, Mary French and Bonnie Fisher, all of Granite Chapter 650.

Kessler gave a report on members going to the Macon Home to take Christmas presents to Alma Fischer.

Refreshments were served by Lois Hackney, Kalogerau and Keel.

Alpha Gamma hosts party for holiday

Members of Laureate Alpha Gamma Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, celebrated the New Year with a traditional President's Reception.

A dinner was hosted by President Arlene Haldeman and her husband, Ralph, at their home, 408 Melrose Ave. The table was centered with a holiday bouquet of poinsettias and candles.

Preceding the main course, guests were served wine and hors d'oeuvres. After dinner, they went to the living room for dessert and coffee.

Attending were Dolores Byrnes, Ruth Stoyanoff, Lora Lombard, Ingene and Bill Forrest, Juanita and Jack Calve, Pat and Phil Tsigolaroff, and Evelyn and Jack Tolliver.

In the month preceding the party, a regular meeting was held in the home of Stoyanoff. Service chairman Juanita Calve reported that a donation was given to the Salvation Army Tree of Lights campaign.

Tolliver led a group discussion on the cultural program "Local Organizations and Clubs." Members told of their experiences in other organizations and the goals and purpose of those clubs.

Alice Konieczny spoke about her role as a reader and board operator for the "Reading Information Service for the Blind," a program broadcast from Our Lady of the Snows Shrine, Belleville.

Tsigolaroff discussed the purpose of the DeMolay Mothers Club; Calve, the Daughters of the American Revolution; Dolores Dorton, the Women's Division of Chamber of Commerce; Forrest, the PTA; Stoyanoff, the Civil Service Retirees' Organization and OATII; and Tolliver, the Girl Scouts.

The hostesses, whose home was decorated for the season, with many Christmas items collected over the years, served a dessert course.

The next week, following a Christmas dinner at Rusty's Restaurant in Edwardsville, members were entertained by Tolliver in her home.

Christmas ornaments were given to each member by Stoyanoff, social chairman, and attendance prizes were awarded to Byrnes, Lombard and the hostesses. As a gift exchange, guests were served dessert.

Those present were Forrest, Tsigolaroff, Dorton, Calve and Martha Dyer.

Another event before the holidays was held the following Sunday when members gathered at the home of Haldeman for the purpose of packing tins with cookies members had made to give to elderly friends and relatives.

Haldeman, Tsigolaroff, Forrest and Stoyanoff delivered some of the tins to friends who reside at the Eden Village Retirement Home in Edwardsville.

Also present were Dorton, Calve and Lombard.

Madison, Granite City students win VFW essay, speech contest

Tony Mainridge, a junior student at Madison Senior High School, and Stephanie Defoor, a senior student at Colonial Christian Academy, Granite City, won first-place awards in a essay-speech contest titled "America's Liberty — Our Heritage."

The contest was sponsored by Madison V.F.W. Post 7451. Receiving honorable mention were runners-up Nicole Royston, Rachel Huery and Scott Kostencki, all of Madison High School.

Awards for winning were given to students Jan. 26 at a dinner at the Madison Recreation Center, Commander Lester

White, said.

A tape of Mainridge and Defoor's speech is being sent to the district competition. If they win there, they will advance to the state competition. The winner of the state competition will receive a five-day trip to Washington, D.C., next March to meet with winners from Europe, the District of Columbia, the Pacific areas and from across the United States. They will visit national monuments and meet government officials.

This program is in its 41st year nationally and first year locally.

Cloverview Garden discusses evergreens

The Cloverview Garden Club met for a dessert luncheon at Ervay's Restaurant, with Mrs. B.C. O'Neill hostess.

Served were Mrs. Kenneth Brokaw, Clarence Etheridge, Charles Gandoria, George Knapp, Bill Mihu, Louise Sedlack, George Stearns, Albert Taylor and Ray Williamson.

The business meeting was opened by President Williamson who led members in the club collect. Roll call was answered with the names of shrubs that attract birds.

Gandoria discussed broadleaf evergreen specimens. She said rhododendrons should be planted in the spring only.

"Azaleas are one of the most colorful of all flowering shrubs and serve on many occasions. They are able to take care of themselves indefinitely. If the proper care is used," she said. Stearns gave a program on air pollution control.

"Many things can be done to reduce the harm that is done. To help the reduction of auto pollution, it was suggested that we walk when we can, use public transportation like buses and trains. Switch off the motor of your car even when parking for a few minutes," Stearns said.

"To reduce power plant pollution, people can help to cut down on electricity use by turning off lights, radios and television when no one is using them. Run the dishwasher only when it's full. Use air conditioners only when some one is home and it's very hot, and avoid using electrical appliances during peak power time. Dry clothes outside when possible. Keep the home furnaces clean and adjusted properly," he said.

Brokaw, 2210 Clinton St., will host the next meeting.

Philippine Islands topic of Lesche

The Lesche Literary Club held its January meeting in the home of Betty Harmon.

Gayle Holsinger entertained the group with slides and articles of the Philippine Islands, where she had lived for two years. She taught at a school attended by children of United States servicemen.

The hostess served refreshments to members: Verna Stuart, Ruth Ann Bartels, Burdine Holtzsch, Connie Strotheide, Hannah Kleinschmidt, Lois Holsinger, Ruth Seymour, Geneva Miller, Virginia John and Bess Henley.

The February meeting will be held in the home of Verna Stuart.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

When a husband and wife have their wills prepared, it is usually recommended that each spouse have his own will. Generally the wills in this situation provide that when the first spouse dies, all of this person's property will pass to the surviving spouse. The question sometimes arises in these situations regarding the status of the wills if the parties obtain a divorce after the wills are signed.

Illinois law provides that a dissolution of marriage (divorce) revokes any gift under a will to the deceased person's former spouse. This is true as long as the will was signed before the entry of the divorce itself. Therefore, there may be no need to have new wills prepared in the event the husband and wife are divorced since the former spouse usually would not receive anything under the terms of the original will.

In one Illinois case, a husband signed his will in 1959. According to the terms of the will, he left all of his property to his wife. The will also provided that if his wife died before him, all of his property would pass to his wife's son.

After the will was signed, the husband and wife obtained a divorce. Shortly after the divorce, the man died. The question arose as to who would receive his property after his death.

Applying Illinois law to the facts of this case, the Appellate Court held that the divorce destroyed any interest that the ex-spouse had under the will. Therefore, she received nothing at the time of her former husband's death. The trial court had gone one step further and ruled that the divorce actually revoked the will, and that therefore the stepson also was to receive nothing under the will. The Appellate Court, however, reversed this holding, and found that the divorce did not destroy the will and did not revoke it. The will remained in effect, but the former wife received nothing because of the divorce. The stepson in this case inherited all of the deceased person's property.

Matthew 28:19... "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations..."

This command is given to the Christian community. And it is given by Jesus Christ our commander. It must be carried out in obedience.

The church must be aggressive. We must go and teach. Believers must teach Christ to unbelievers. When you come to understand that there is, "None other name given under heaven whereby man must be saved," you will understand the sense of urgency.

Contrary to appearances, churches are not competing against each other. No church can save your soul. Salvation of the soul belongs to God alone. Christ is the way, the truth, and the life, and no man comes unto the Father but by him. Be learning this great truth, your life will be greatly blessed!

Voters hold verdict for state's attorney

By D.W. Henderson
Staff affiliate

Critics want to prosecute, supporters want to defend, but after closing arguments, it will be a jury of voters that renders the verdict in the Madison County state's attorney election.

The March 15 Democratic primary winner, either incumbent Dick Allen, 42, Granite City, or challenger Bill Haine, 42, Alton, will face Don Weber, 39, rural Carpenter, in the November general election.

Allen, the incumbent, has been state's attorney three years, and has been active in party politics since the early 1960s. He is a St. Louis University Law School graduate.

Allen said he gained a experience working in the office for three previous state's attorneys.

Concerning his record in the last three years, Allen said things are "running very smoothly."

Allen said when he won the office from Weber, "it was a shambles."

Weber tried 11 cases when he was state's attorney, several of which were returned for prosecutorial misconduct or for over-reaching in the closing argument," Allen said.

Allen said Weber doesn't have as much experience in prosecutions as many of the people handling that function in his office.

Capulizing their philosophy on how the office should operate, Allen's administrative assistant, Miles McCall, said, "The state's attorney is the senior partner in one of the largest law firms in Madison County. And as the senior partner, he runs the administration of that firm."

Madison County State's Attorney
ELECTION 1988

"Yes, that's right," Allen said. Haine is a graduate of St. Louis University Law School and is an attorney with the firm of Bono, Haine and Berg in Wood River. He and his family live in Alton.

Haine said that before campaigning he visited most police departments in the county. Haine said the consensus was that Allen wasn't doing the job.

Haine is experienced in county government—and as an administrator. He has been a County Board member since 1978 and has served as chairman of the Madison County Transit Authority since 1985.

If elected, Haine said his priority will be "to change the attitude of the office. The attitude of the state's attorney must be that there are certain policies that are to be implemented in every case."

Haine said, "An offense should have a certain fine or prison penalty and that is the standard. If there is a deviation from the standard, it should only be done under the most extraordinary circumstances and it has to be a long thinking process."

Haine called prosecution under Allen "halfway justice," referring to plea bargaining.

"We have a system now where two lawyers get together and pass sentence in the hallway. I don't think either the defendant or the public is served that way. We have good judges, that are well paid. It's their job to sentence, and it's the job of the state's attorney to represent the interests of society and the community in those sentences," Haine said.

A state's attorney's refusal to ask for the death penalty in a case where a heinous murder was committed, as with the deaths in Granite City of Carl and Susan Hoffman, is "like playing cards and not being able to use the aces," he said.

Haine linked the county's rise in murders in the last few years to "the lack of sanctions coming out of the state's attorney's office."

Haine said that, if elected, "There will be some new faces in the office, but there is also a good core of people there now."

To run the office, Haine said there "has to be a team of good assistant state's attorneys that are insulated from political pressure. That's the job of the boss."

"It means going in to court yourself occasionally, but that isn't as necessary as making sure you are with your assistants in the courtroom, backing them up, especially in a high-profile case with a lot of pressure."

Haine said he would assign to every area of the county people that police departments can work with and have confidence in.

Haine said he will "go after the property of drug pushers which by law can be forfeited."

Haine said, "The taxpayers should obtain some money back because of the cost of drug enforcement."

Haine criticized Allen for putting too much emphasis on certain cases that police officers, like the victim's witness program and recovering child support payments.

"They are all well and good, but the primary purpose of that office is to prosecute criminals. The other duties are not on an equal plane," he said.

Weber is a graduate of St. Louis University Law School and has been in private law practice in Collinsville the last three years.

He was recently appointed temporary state's attorney of Ford County, Ill.

If elected, Weber said he would have several immediate objectives.

"First, I would have a direct supervisory roll over the criminal division. That would include having monthly docket calls."

"Secondly, I would lead the office by example as a trial lawyer myself. I think the standards should be set at the top rather than the bottom."

"Thirdly, I would eliminate a number of positions Allen has, including $12,000 for a public relations man and $28,000 for somebody to supervise the felony division. I also think his victim's witness program is too fat."

Weber said Allen's staff is poor and he would make replacements.

Weber said he would personally take charge of advising the County Board, one of the duties of the office, and preparing the office budget.

"Allen has totally neglected the budget, the felony and civil divisions and the administrative end of his office."

Weber promised to eliminate plea bargaining.

"I think the public is sick to death of plea bargaining, particularly the way Allen has gone about it," he said.

Weber said he would be tougher than Allen on seeking the death penalty.

"I asked for the death penalty five times when I was state's attorney, and the jury brought it back twice."

Weber said, "The death penalty should not be applied except in the most heinous of cases when the circumstances are clear cut."

Weber said his experience and aggressive style give him the strongest qualifications to be the state's attorney, and that his biggest problem will be overcoming the negative image that was "created" for him by the Democrats who didn't want him in office.

"The important message in this campaign is that I've got the experience and ability to do this job and I'm the only one who does."

Granite City police

Collision injures two

Two persons were injured in an accident Jan. 29 involving a van operated by Bessie J. Eason, 54, 1832 Cleveland Blvd., turning left from Illinois 162 onto Maryville Road, and a westbound car driven by Dennis L. Williams, 29, Troy.

Williams and a passenger in his auto, Stephanie A. Williams, 28, Troy, sustained injuries and were taken by ambulance to St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

Auto passenger injured

Involved in a Jan. 29 accident on Madison Avenue at 29th Street were cars operated by Robin D. Barker, 32, 2714 West 22nd St., and Charles T. Hagnauer, 21, 2530 Spalding Ave.

Beth Brooks, 23, St. Louis, a passenger in the Hagnauer auto, which was southbound on Madison Avenue, sustained a minor injury. Barker was ticketed for failure to yield at an intersection.

Crash ends in charges

Cheryl A. Mikolaszuk, 823 Grand Ave., Madison, stopped her southbound van because of half a traffic in the 2800 block of Madison Avenue and it was struck from the rear by a southbound vehicle operated by Deborah A. Dollins, 21, of 1606 Second St., Madison.

Officers investigating the Jan. 29 accident alleged an open bottle of wine was on the floorboard of Dollins' auto and she was charged with illegal transportation of alcohol.

Two passengers in the Dollins car, Ronald L. Parsons, 18, 137 Briarcliff Drive, and Connie M. Stewart, 19, 1227 Iowa St., Madison, were charged with unlawful possession of alcohol. All three were released after posting their driver licenses.

5 traffic tickets issued

After allegedly seeing a motorist pass a stop sign on Washington Avenue and turn right at 30th Street, striking the curb Jan. 29, an officer stopped at Iowa Street a car operated by Michael E. Garber, 26, 2209 Grand Ave.

Liquid allegedly was on the floor of the car and a strong smell of alcohol was noted in the report. An empty beer bottle and two empty cups were on the floorboard, the officer said.

Garber was charged with unlawful transportation of alcohol, improper lane usage and disobeying a stop sign.

Passengers James A. Rutter, 29, and Carlton J. Turner, 19, both of 2108 Benton St., were both charged with unlawful possession of alcohol. All were released pending a March 4 appearance at the Granite City court.

Radio, TV, jewelry gone
In a burglary at the home of Rose Painter, 2821 Edwards St., reported Jan. 29, an AM-FM cassette radio valued at $80, an AM-FM television worth $130, a blue bingo bag with assorted counters inside and a jewelry box containing antique jewelry valued at $200 were stolen.

Former husband charged
John Lee Carpenter, 23, Granite City, was charged with assault at 2:15 a.m. Jan. 30 when police responded to a disturbance at the home of his former wife, Shelley R. Carpenter, 2636 E. 25th St.

John Carpenter, who reported the incident at the Granite City Police Station, said that after a verbal confrontation with her ex-husband he grabbed her, put his hand over her mouth and made threats before throwing her onto a couch.

While Carpenter was talking on the telephone, the woman ran to the basement and awakened her brother. She obtained car keys and drove to the police headquarters, she said. Carpenter was on the porch at the residence when the woman was arrested.

Vandal breaks glass
A rock-throwing vandal shattered a door window on a 1979 auto owned by Bruce Watkins, 2524 Delmar Ave., while the car was parked Jan. 29 at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 4225 Old Alton Road.

Picture window broken
A large rock was thrown through the living room picture window at the home of Renee Hunt, 2132 Bryan Ave., she reported Jan. 30.

Five bike wheels stolen
Five wheels were stolen from three 10-speed bicycles parked in a rear yard at the home of Kai Whitts, 2536 Grand Ave., it was reported Jan. 29.

Illinoisan glad to be back from prison in Nicaragua

By David Rocks

PRU Washington bureau
WASHINGTON — James Denby, freed after 55 days in a Nicaraguan jail, said Feb. 1 he now opposes aid to the Contra rebels he once backed.

But Denby, a farmer from Carlinville, and the men who secured his release denied that his freedom was granted in exchange for a promise to help efforts to halt Contra aid.

"There were absolutely no conditions," said Bill Press, a U.S. Senate candidate from California who traveled to Managua twice last month to negotiate Denby's release. A former television commentator who also reported on fighting in Nicaragua, Press was an official U.S. observer to the Central American peace talks in San Jose, Costa Rica last month.

Denby, who once fervently supported the Contras, said he would work to defeat President Ronald Reagan's plan to give the rebels $36.2 million in military and non-military aid.

"Anybody who will do what (Press) did for me," the 58-year-old Denby said at a news conference, "I want to help them in any way I can." Press said he was trying to block the Reagan effort.

Denby was shot down by Nicaraguan soldiers Dec. 6 while flying his Cessna 172 from Illinois to his Costa Rican farm near the Nicaraguan border. He was charged with aiding the Contras. Denby said he was well-treated while in prison and that he always believed he would not end up serving a full sentence.

"(Sandinistas) knew very well that I was no value to them," Denby said. "I was only good to trade."

Press called Denby's release a "message of good will to the American people" from the Sandinista government of Nicaragua. But he also acknowledged that the release was probably tied to the vote on Contra aid.

Denby said at the morning conference that he wanted later in the day to meet with the Nicaraguan ambassador, Dr. Carlos Tunnerman, to try to get his plane back. He planned to return to Illinois that night.

Denby attributed his imprisonment to press reports of his involvement with the Contras — which he said were exaggerated. In a surprise to reports that he had allowed Contras to use his farm in Costa Rica for staging operations, Denby said he never broke American, Costa Rican or Nicaraguan law in doing so.

He also said he was held because of his political views, especially after he told interrogators he has been a lifelong Republican.

"They honestly think they're in a life and death struggle with the Republicans led by Ronald Reagan," Denby said. "And I made the mistake of saying I'm a Republican."

During the news conference and in a later interview, Denby often referred to Press and others as "angels" who had come to his rescue. He said he appreciated the help of many in bringing about his release, including the efforts of Rep. Richard Durbin, D-Springfield.

"(People) worked their tails off for me and I didn't even vote for him," Denby said. "I think that's really something."

Panel will investigate judicial charges

A St. Clair County judge has requested an investigation into allegations of improprieties in the judicial selection process in the 6th Judicial Circuit.

The request was sparked by a 13-page letter written to several Metro East newspapers by Belleville attorney Charles Hamilton.

In the letter, Hamilton, a former president of the St. Clair County Bar Association and an unsuccessful candidate for associate judge, accused St. Clair County Board Chairman Jerry F. Costello of improper control over the selection of judges in the circuit.

Costello's response has been that the allegations by Hamilton were "absolutely absurd" and that Hamilton was "unstable," a counter charge that came as a surprise to numerous Metro East attorneys.

The bitter dispute escalated on Jan. 25 when a letter signed by 46 area attorneys defending Hamilton and calling for investigation into the charges was circulated.

Belleville attorney Robert McGlynn, who organized the circulation and release of the letter supporting Hamilton, said Jan. 27 "there would have been more signers if time had permitted."

McGlynn said at least a dozen attorneys who signed the letter participated "in drafting and editing it, making additions and subtractions."

A portion of the letter follows:

"We believe that these very serious charges should be addressed in a serious manner and not dismissed summarily as the product of someone's imagination or hurt."

"We further believe there should be a thorough investigation by the appropriate authorities of these charges."

Driver faces 3 charges

Ricky J. Muckenstrum, 25, 4010 Braden Ave., was arrested for driving while under the influence of alcohol, driving while his license was suspended and improper lane usage Jan. 28 in the 3600 block of Nameoki Road. He was arrested after a patrolman alleged seeing Muckenstrum's car weaving from lane to lane.

Arrest on Nameoki Road

Randall Stuart, 31, St. Louis, was charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol and improper lane usage Jan. 29 at Nameoki Road and Madison Avenue. Stuart was arrested after his auto allegedly weaved from lane to lane and he applied the brakes frequently on Nameoki Road.

Truck driver charged

James Frank Moore, 41, Earle, Ark., was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol and driving while his license was suspended when arrested Jan. 29 in the 1600 block of Madison Avenue.

Moore was driving a 1987 flatbed tractor-trailer, owned by P.G.T. Trucking Co., when stopped by an officer who alleged the rear tires of the truck were locked and skidding along the pavement without the wheels turning. A large chain was hanging from the side of the truck and bouncing along the ground, he said.

Moore agreed to take a breathalyzer test and was released pending a March 17 appearance at the Madison County Courthouse.

Court

Man placed on probation

Charles Wilson, 31, East St. Louis, pleaded guilty and was sentenced Jan. 4 on a charge of theft from a person.

Madison County Associate Judge Edward Ferguson sentenced Wilson to two years of probation and ordered him to pay $90 court costs.

The charge was filed Oct. 9 after an investigation by Madison authorities.

Suing doctors made harder

Illinois plaintiffs filing medical malpractice lawsuits must produce evidence that their case has merit, according to a just-announced state Supreme Court ruling.

In McCasle vs. Sheinkopf, the court affirmed that medical malpractice cases cannot proceed without the "certificate of merit" mandated by a 1985 medical malpractice reform law. The certificate must be signed by a physician of the same specialty as the defendant who has reviewed the lawsuit's worth.

While the Supreme Court's ruling mandates merit be shown, it leaves Illinois trial judges wide latitude in how they handle malpractice cases not meeting that standard. Judges will be able to decide, based on the individual circumstances of a lawsuit, whether to allow "dismissal without prejudice" — thus allowing plaintiffs and attorneys another chance to get the certificate and refile the case. However, judges are free to dismiss cases "with prejudice," barring the plaintiff from refiling.

"This decision means that Illinois civil courts will stay protected from the avalanche of nonmeritorious lawsuits which, until recently, held up awards and settlements for truly injured patients," said Edward J. Lesco, M.D., Illinois State Medical Society president.

"Before passage of the 1985 reform law, over 80 percent of lawsuits filed ended up paying nothing to the plaintiff. But they generated enormous legal and administrative costs borne by doctors and patients throughout our state. The decision marks a clear victory for reform," Fesco said.

"Without jeopardizing access to court redress for injured patients," Enacted by the General Assembly as part of a comprehensive medical malpractice package, the certificate of merit law is credited with slashing a backlog of medical malpractice cases in many county-court systems throughout Illinois. Anticipating its effectiveness, trial attorneys in many Illinois counties rushed to file medical malpractice lawsuits just before the law took effect, Fesco said.

In Cook County, almost 1,200 medical malpractice lawsuits were added to the court docket in the two weeks before the law took effect.

Woman allegedly struck after helping man

Two men were arrested on charges of battery after allegedly hitting a man and striking a woman who had come to his aid.

Mark S. Austin, 25, St. Louis, said that while he was inside the Tiptop Tavern, 1746 State St., about 2:39 a.m. Jan. 24, he was jumped by two men who took him outside and allegedly hit him in the face. He said he was then knocked to the ground and kicked in the face.

Marsha Wilkerson, 26, 4300 Lake Drive, Pontoon Beach, said as she attempted to break up the fight she was struck in the face.

Charles D. Spink, 29, 3807 Kirkpatrick Homes, was arrested on two counts of battery. Curtis D. Spink, 23, 2430 Logan Ave., was arrested on one count of battery and served a 1987 Granite City warrant for failure to appear on a charge of illegal possession of alcohol.

Purse taken

Carol Kay Crossno, 1304 Kirkpatrick Homes, said her purse was taken from her shopping cart Jan. 25 at the National Food store, 3100 Madison Ave. The purse contained cash and personal papers.

Q. I am confused over some terms. I wonder if you could help me out by explaining the difference, if any, between money market funds and money market certificates.

A. The two names are quite a lot alike - which can cause confusion. However, there is a lot of difference between the two instruments. Money Market Certificates are guaranteed, insured financial instruments which are offered as a service of our bank. Money Market Funds, on the other hand, are mutual fund instruments which fluctuate, are not a service of a banking institution and, therefore, are uninsured. Available through your bank, Money Market Certificates bear a guaranteed yield. And, to insure availability to funds, Certificates are backed by a specific reserve set aside as required by law. No fees are charged when investing in Money Market Certificates, and the money invested is reinvested right here at home and in the surrounding area.

Car wash vandalized

Two coin boxes were destroyed and a third damaged Jan. 28 at the Granite City Car Wash, 3633 Nameoki Road. Damage to the coin boxes, which were priced open, was estimated at $1,200.

Car stolen on Denver

A red 1984 Ford was stolen about 6:25 p.m. Jan. 27 in the 2500 block of Denver Street. Robert Eugene LeMaster, 2406 Logan Ave., said he was in a confectionery about five minutes before he discovered the car missing. The keys had been left in the car.

Car windshield smashed

A 21-year-old Mitchell driver said she was driving west on Victory Drive, near the drainage ditch, when her car was struck by an object that broke the windshield at 8:41 p.m. Jan. 28.

Cleaning equipment gone

Cleaning equipment valued at about $1,200 was taken from the back seat of the car of Joey Connor, 2801 Roosevelt Ave., where the car had been parked Jan. 27.

Edwards house entered

Rose Painter, 2812 Edwards St., reported Jan. 29 that a burglar took $200 in jewelry, an $80 radio and a $130 television from her home. The burglary apparently occurred while some of the family members were asleep in the house.

Blaze destroys garage

A blaze caused $4,000 in damage to a storage garage and items kept in the structure at 2836 Harding Blvd., owned by Terry Roscoe. Firefighters arrived at the scene at 10:18 a.m. Jan. 28 and stayed for three hours. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Vehicle damages fence

Terry D. Haynes, 38, Rural Route 1, was charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol Jan. 31 after his vehicle allegedly hit the fence of Gladys Reeves, 2033 Washington Ave., and caused $200 in damage.

Legion youth camp planned at academy

COLLINSVILLE — Application forms for the annual American Legion Youth Police Program, co-sponsored by the Illinois State Police, are now available at State Police headquarters throughout Illinois, according to State Police Director Jeremy Margolis.

Applications are available to both males and females 14 and 15 years of age.

Applications to attend the week-long camp, to be held at the State Police Academy in Springfield, will be taken through May 15, with a maximum enrollment of 75. The camp will be held June 19-25.

Margolis said the American Legion Youth Police Program is to establish interpersonal relationships between the youth and law enforcement officers, and to establish a better understanding of police officers and the criminal justice system.

Applications must be received by the Safety, Law and Order Commission of the American Legion by May 15.

Christopher Sinde

Army Pvt. Christopher S. Sinde, son of Timothy A. and Sharon L. Sinde, 1000 James St., Granite City, has been awarded the Expert Field Medical Badge at Fort Lewis in Washington.

Sinde is a 1984 graduate of Granite City High School. The badge won by the soldier is the Army's highest non-combat proficiency award for medical personnel.

The test covered three basic areas — physical conditioning, a written examination and a field performance test.

Sinde completed a 12-mile road march and carried a patient strapped to a litter through an obstacle course during the hands-on portions of the testing.

April DuVall

Staff Sgt. April S. DuVall has graduated from the Air Force non-commissioned officer leadership school, where she studied techniques of leadership, management and supervision.

DuVall is the daughter of Leonard J. Guth and stepdaughter of Ely E. Guth, 2811 E. 25th St. A 1979 graduate of Granite City High School, the sergeant is an administration technician with the 332nd Air Division at Luke Air Force Base in Arizona.

Glen Rabon

Army Cpl. Glenn T. Rabon, son of Dorothy M. Rabon, 2817 Edgewood Ave., and Odell L. Rabon, Florissant, Mo., has been presented the second award of the Good Conduct Medal in West Germany. The award was presented for exemplary conduct while in the active service of the United States.

Rabon, a tank turret repairer with the 3rd Support Battalion, is a 1980 graduate of Granite City High School.

Everett Hughes

Army Pvt. Everett (Mary) Hughes, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hughes Sr., 2717 Roosevelt St., graduated Dec. 10 from basic training and Advanced Individual Training courses at Fort Benning, Ga.

Hughes left Jan. 3 for Fort Campbell, Ky., after spending the Christmas and New Year holiday weeks at home with his parents. The soldier is a 1987 graduate of Granite City High School.

Kevin Gardner

Army Pvt. Kevin M. Gardner, son of Linda C. Gardner, 75 Grenzer Homes, Madison, and Kevin Gardner, 427 Weaver St., Venice, has graduated from the Army quartermaster and chemical equipment repair course, a seven-week training program at the Aberdeen Proving Ground in Maryland.

Gardner was taught how to maintain small engines, laundry units, stoves, heaters and chemical equipment.

He is a 1987 graduate of Venice High School.

Todd Pope

Air Force Sgt. Todd J. Pope, son of Shirley J. Pope, 2510 Parkway Drive, has been decorated with the Joint Service Achievement Medal at MacDill Air Force Base in Florida.

Pope is an electronic communications and cryptologic equipment systems specialist. He is a 1981 graduate of Granite City High School North.

The Achievement Medal is awarded to an individual for meritorious service, acts of courage or other accomplishments.

ROTC scholarship offered by USAF

Local Air Force recruiters are now offering four-year Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) college scholarships. Interested individuals should contact their local Air Force recruiter.

As a minimum, applicants must be a U.S. citizen, be in the upper 25 percent of their graduating class, and score at a minimum a 23 on the ACT or 1000 on the SAT.

The application period is rapidly coming to a close for individuals interested in starting to college next September.

Air Force offers nursing opportunities

Civilian and Veterans Administration hospitals nationwide face severe nursing shortages — perhaps the worst in history, a military spokesman said. Many educators, hospital administrators and military officials believe it's because more avenues are open to women than in the past. They're going into other fields.

"Certain specialties are harder to fill than others, however," said Capt. Lanette Watson, chief nurse recruiting in St. Louis. "Those specialties we have a critical need for are nurse anesthetists, operating room nurses, pediatric nurse practitioners and obstetric nurses. We have openings for these registered nurses in hospitals around the world." The initial three-year commitment begins with commissioning, usually as second- or first lieutenant based on educational background. New nurses attend a two-week orientation course where they learn about their roles as Air Force officers and how they fit into the Air Force mission.

Like all Air Force members, nurses enjoy a variety of entitlements, including a non-contributory retirement plan, 30 days of vacation with pay each year, worldwide travel opportunities, medical and dental care, low cost life insurance and regular pay raises. "Nurses can attend education at seminars and workshops conducted at military and civilian installations," Watson said. "And, nurses are encouraged to continue their formal education through local colleges and universities. The Air Force has several education programs, such as the G.I. Bill and tuition assistance, which will help pay the costs of advanced education. The professional growth is hard to match."

Air Force nurse recruiters are located at 1065 Executive Parkway, Mason Executive Building, Creve Coeur, 63141-8326. For more information, call (314) 434-9555.

Nearly 60,000 join Air Force in 1987

Almost 60,000 young Americans entered the Air Force in Fiscal Year 1987. Air Force recruiters nationwide excelled in bringing in the best quality officers and enlisted people in the history of the Air Force.

"I'm proud of the recruiters and the job they do for our country," said Col. Dale R. Ulrich, vice commander of the Air Force Recruiting Service.

For the fifth straight year the Recruiting Service achieved 100 percent or better in all program goals.

"I'm particularly pleased about that," said Col. Ulrich, "considering our perennial problem of recruiting physicians. But our recruiters pulled together this year and we made our 114 objective."

Among the almost 60,000 people the Air Force attracted last year, 55,000 enlisted with no prior military service and about 1,000 with prior military service.

Officer Training School at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, attracted 1,600, and more than 950 health care professionals received direct commissions in the Air Force Medical Service. About 400 more received health professions scholarships. The new officers and enlisted people entering the Air Force brought high marks with them. Officer Training School candidates ranked in the top one-third of all college graduates with their grade point averaging 3.15.

Of the nonprior service enlistees, 99 percent were high school diploma graduates. And almost 49 percent scored in the top two mental categories on their qualifying tests.

During the next 12 months, Air Force recruiters will seek about 58,000 volunteers for today's high technology Air Force.

Goals will be about 55,000 people without prior military service, 600 with prior military service, about 1,000 college graduates for officer training, and more than 1,250 health care professionals, including a requirement of 139 physicians.

"Fiscal Year 1988 is going to be another outstanding year for Air Force recruiting. We have strong support from the American people and the Congress, and we have outstanding opportunities to offer our nation's young people," Ulrich said.

Beckett to train for cannon crew

Pvt. Kyle Beckett, Brooklyn, has enlisted in the U.S. Army under provisions of the Delayed Entry Program (DEP), in which a recruit may take up to 12 months after enlisting before beginning active duty.

According to his recruiter, Staff Sgt. Darcella Jackson, U.S. Army Recruiting Station, 4700 State St., Beckett has received a written guarantee from the Army that he will be trained as a cannon crewmember.

Beckett is a 1987 graduate of Lovejoy High School. He reported for duty on Dec. 1 and is taking basic training and advanced individual training at Fort Sill, Okla.

Young persons who can meet the Army's physical and aptitude standards may call Jackson at 274-1636 to learn more about Army opportunities.

Air Force offers college payments

Local Air Force recruiters are offering four-year Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) college scholarships.

Interested individuals should contact their local Air Force recruiter. As a minimum, applicants must be U.S. citizens, be in the upper 25 percent of their graduating class, and score at least 23 on the ACT or 1000 on the SAT.

Trashing county could be costly

Write a trashy column and it'll be well read.

At least that's the hope of 1988's army of landfill opponents who are trying to rally the public against an invasion of trash from outside this area.

As some see it, a war is in progress.

Illinoisans are losing that war, partly because of Missouri's stricter environmental rules, partly because of less expensive Illinois dumping, and partly because one side so far has been outwitting and outmaneuvering the other.

BRIDGES FIGURE prominently in the "war" strategy. Even though some of the Mississippi River bridges are free and others charge tolls, all of the bridges are utilized so that the volume of truck traffic won't seem quite so overwhelming to commuters, critics of repeated landfill expansions say.

Trucks carrying the trash are not the conventional kind of garbage trucks, the critics add, and many people may be unaware of the scope of what is happening.

However, even with such low-profile tactics, the expected congestion during bridge repairs over the next several years may help dramatize the issue.

ASIDE FROM aesthetic considerations (garbage isn't beautiful), the wear-and-tear on roadways, and the NIMBY factor (Not In My Back Yard!), there are said to be valid reasons why a state ought to try harder (than Illinois is trying) to avoid inheriting another state's garbage.

Existing laws permit a hauler to abandon a landfill and escape responsibility for its future after only a few years, it is being contended.

Another point is that multiple corporations have been set up; the overall liability would be limited by the relatively small size of a particular trash company and its assets.

THE PROBLEM arises when ground contamination, if it occurs, has to be coped with by the taxpayers of the county where trash, garbage and other wastes have been dumped and buried.

Huge remedial costs are being forecast, as well as numerous health hazards.

And the critics also say some areas might find their sources of drinking water endangered.

A CALL TO ARMS was sounded at a citizen rally held Jan. 30 at the Edwardsville Township Building.

With the Pollution Control Committee of the Madison County Board set to meet at 3:30 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 6, a rally will start an hour earlier at the Township Building.

On Monday, Feb. 8, still another rally is set for that location at 8:30 a.m. The County Board has called a special meeting for 9:30 a.m. Feb. 8 at the Madison County Courthouse, Edwardsville, to decide whether to permit a major expansion of the Barton Landfill near that city.

A DAILY VIGIL at the Courthouse steps also has been planned by SAFER (Save All Farmland and Environmental Resources).

Janet May, co-chairperson, said a sign-carrying group will walk around the courthouse from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. each day after gathering on the steps of St. John's Church across the street.

Granite Citizens and Madisonians are among the group, which is also worried about the prospect of accelerated dumping in a near-the-border St. Clair County area next to Madison.

AROUND THE REGION:

Bursting their buttons with pride, Collinsville residents are happy that a special census has shown a 6.9 percent population gain for their city, from 19,613 in 1980 to 20,975.

The Columbia (Ill.) Department Store has a new owner, the Leader Inc. department store of Granite City. Irv Strauss said the amount and variety of the Columbia store's merchandise will be expanded. Leader also operates two stores in Highland.

Granite City Mayor Ver Dee Cruse in the 1980s has joined longtime members Emil Toffant and Madison Mayor John Bell-coff on the board of directors of the Southwestern Illinois Law Enforcement Commission.

Retail merchants report state retail sales in December rose 8.4 percent over December 1986, reflecting a busy Christmas season. The increase was 3.91 percent in northern Illinois, 9.65 percent in metropolitan Chicago and 6.49 percent in central/southern Illinois.

-IS HE? Is one of the candidates for Madison County auditor, Michael Myler of Collinsville, in the race as a "stooge" for other politicians, as many people are saying? He says he's a serious candidate, but he's being widely criticized for aiming much of his oratory at two people not running for auditor, County Clerk Evelyn Bowles and retiring Auditor Pete Fields.

Illinois savings and loan associations in the first nine months of 1987 earned a 0.44 percent return on their assets, compared to only 0.15 percent by Missouri S&Ls and minus-0.27 percent nationally (including Texas' troubled financial institutions).

Interstate 255 may appear to be largely rural, but it won't be for long, according to enthusiastic Metro East economic and residential developers, and according to the Federal Highway Administration and Illinois Department of Transportation.

After several months, speed limit signs that had been switched from 55 miles per hour to 65 have been changed back to 55. Metro East just isn't that rural and isolated, the highway officials decided. But we won't call it a metroplex, as Alton civic boosters describe their area.

TAX TIME is here again, and the usual pain has been compounded by a series of "reforms." What started out to be a simplification has resulted in a more complex set of federal income tax rules.

Volunteer counselors from the American Association of Retired Persons, trained by the Internal Revenue Service, are offering free help in preparing federal and state tax returns for senior citizens and low-income persons and families.

The counselors are at the Moose hall, 19th and Adams streets, every Tuesday and Friday from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m.

No, they won't help you pay what you owe.

Art Cozart (452-5126) says, "Bring copies of your last income tax returns and materials for the year just ended."

tors, said he was disappointed when told of the decision.

"All we wanted was our day in court to prove the facts, but I guess that's not going to happen, at least not right now," Libbra said.

Lodge to be billed major resort

SPRINGFIELD—The expanded Pere Marquette State Park lodge will be marketed as a major destination resort and business conference location when it reopens this summer.

"It will be operated as a full-service resort property and we'll be seeking a lot of banquet business, conferences and meetings," said Andrew Lombardo. His firm was awarded a 10-year concession lease this year to operate the lodge complex.

Lombardo operates Blackhawk Village in Jacksonville. It includes a 56-room motel, two restaurants and a lounge. He expects to keep at least one traditional attraction of the Pere Marquette Lodge in past years—"family style" chicken and catfish dinners in the restaurant.

But he said he intends to market the facility more heavily toward business and meeting planners in St. Louis. "I think we can get them to come to Illinois and promote tourism in the area."

Lombardo has a tentative agreement for the lodge near Grafton to be affiliated with Clarion Hotels, which he said is "nationally recognized as a top resort operator."

He was resident manager of the Clarion Hotel in downtown St. Louis for two years before going into business for himself in Jacksonville. He said he worked for the company that owns the Clarion franchises for several years prior to that.

The Clarion affiliation would "ensure high quality operating standards" and "we'll have the advantage of their national marketing program and reservation systems," Lombardo said.

Lombardo said the Department of Conservation indicated to him the lodge might be ready to reopen by early summer.

He said he would begin hiring and training the staff "six to eight weeks before the opening."

Delay expansion of landfill

At a special meeting Monday, the Madison County Board will decide whether to allow GSX Corp. to expand the 30-acre Barton Landfill near Edwardsville to 263 acres.

Our view is that expansions there — and at locations south of Madison — ought to be delayed until officials can find ways to make sure that mainly "local" garbage and waste are to be dumped.

As long as trash is being transported from a wide area, our reserve landfill capacity and space are likely to be filled rapidly, causing a never-ending series of "crises" and site enlargements.

Landfill proponents make a distinction between normal and hazardous waste, but few items in a household's trash bags are truly non-hazardous.

A Jan. 28 "home notes" column by Janet Burnett, University of Illinois Extension Service adviser in Madison County, says a typical family of four generates 200 pounds of dangerous waste annually. Included in her list are cleaning supplies, pesticides, furniture polish, bleach, outdated medicines, paint, car batteries, anti-freeze and varnish.

One of the issues in the Barton Landfill dispute is whether leakage into nearby land and water is likely. Engineers have tried to prevent leaks but cannot guarantee their methods will work.

As various opponents have said, landfill owners and hauling companies would be liable for only a limited time, after which this county's taxpayers would have to shoulder the cost of remedying whatever contamination occurs.

This prospect and any related health hazards make the proposal extremely unattractive.

Yet, much lobbying has taken place and there is a possibility the landfill request will be approved. We hope not, because some of the ramifications of the overall trash problem have not yet been fully explored at the county and regional levels.

Ideally, recent national headlines like "ticking toxic time bombs" and "tons of trash with no place to put it" — together with studies and campaigns — will alert citizens and officials and lead to solutions.

Paul popular party prospect

Illinoisans don't have to leap to any conclusions about presidential candidates this early in the 1988 selection process. But in the Iowa caucuses, the day of decision is Monday. Our neighboring state will provide the first voter real test for the six Republican and seven Democratic aspirants.

Paul Simon, practically a "hometown boy" in the Venice-to-Mitchell area, represented this community in the Illinois General Assembly for 14 years. Quad Citizens are understandably proud that he has been endorsed for the Democratic nomination by the Des Moines Register, which simultaneously backed Robert Dole in the Republican race.

The endorsements by Iowa's largest newspaper are only that — editors' opinions of the contenders. But they take on added importance because that state has seen so much campaigning during the past year. Some of the presidential hopefuls have almost established permanent residence in Iowa, or so it seems, and few if any secrets remain undisclosed.

The Register believes Simon is the best Democratic candidate and that all of the seven except former Sen. Gary Hart would represent their party well.

Simon was praised for "a long and unwavering record" — one that reflects "a man who has decent instincts and sticks by them. He offers the correct diagnosis: The United States has diverted too much of its resources into the military rivalry with the Soviet Union while Japan and Western Europe, less burdened by military expenditures, forged ahead in the economic rivalry."

Meanwhile, Democrats' 1972 presidential nominee George McGovern, has supported Simon and scolded Rep. Richard Gephardt for using a nationally televised debate to denounce Simon's economic proposals as "Reaganomics with a bow tie." McGovern says the phrase may be clever but also is unfair and untrue. He regrets that various competitors are voicing "unreasonably harsh judgments" about their fellow Democrats.

Gephardt, Simon and Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis are regarded by pollsters as the top three in Iowa Democrats' hearts, with Dole the clear favorite of Iowa Republicans. Illinoisans preparing to cast their own votes March 15 await the Iowa outcome with considerable fascination.

And after Illinois, it will be only four months and three days until the Democratic nominating convention begins in Atlanta.

Some charge for letters

An editorial page should be a forum for ideas, not a marketplace for them.

Some newspapers demand money to print political endorsement letters on the editorial page. The Dec. 26 issue of a newspaper trade magazine, Editor and Publisher, stated a fee resulted because some politicians overused letters columns to get endorsements printed.

When several letters to the Press-Record endorse candidates, the policy is to limit publication to one or two letters.

If a person insisted on publication, he could buy space elsewhere in the newspaper.

As stated by E&P, "If a newspaper wants to charge space rates for publishing letters from its readers they should be placed in ad space and not on the letters page. 'Vox populi' should mean what it says (the voice of the people) and not have an 'advertising' slug over it."

Myler attacks reputable officials

To the editor:

I couldn't help but comment on the article concerning Michael Myler, candidate for Madison County auditor.

Myler certainly doesn't sound like the independent candidate he claims to be when he calls a news conference just for the purpose of attacking Pete Fields. He sounds like he is an opponent of Fields.

His concern should be to share with the voters his qualifications for the office for which he is running. He should show how being a nursing home administrator qualifies him for auditor of Madison County.

Attacking reputable candidates and officials like Fields and Evelyn Bowles certainly won't enhance his chances of being elected.

These officeholders have done a superb job of running their respective offices. I makes me wonder if Myler is serious about his candidacy.

Costello taking too much credit

To the editor:

Jerry Costello sure fooled the seven people he quoted in his latest political propaganda.

These people seem to think Costello is responsible for such federal programs as the Job Training Partnership Act, Summer Youth Employment, and Community Development Block Grants. One even calls JTPA "Mr. Costello's job training program."

APA trying to preserve lives

To the editor:

We, the members of the Association for the Protection of Animals, would like to take a moment of your time to share a heart-rending human interest story about a "true" incident as depicted through the eyes of the mother in the story. The following is an excerpt that appeared in the Press-Record:

Atrocious crimes are committed everyday. I know that. I am haunted day and night knowing this. My own baby son was taken from me. My own family has deserted me and left me to fend for myself.

They have withdrawn all financial and emotional support and moved to unknown parts, leaving me with no home to call my own. Now "they" are going to commit me. I pleaded with them for the sake of my son and asked for mercy. But they did not understand me or a mother's anguish.

So I beseech you — the people in this community — please do not allow this to continue to happen. Please come to the aid of those abandoned in your neighborhood. For I am the mother of a young boy puppy whose misfortune in life was to belong to a family which left him to a life of abandonment and neglect when they moved away and left us behind.

My son and I were taken to the Madison County Found and now I know and accept my fate. But for my son I have hope he will have a chance for adoption to a new home.

"A Sorrowing Mother"

This account is but one of many real life stories as the following statistics well show. This past year, over 3,100 cats and dogs have been needlessly destroyed as a result of abandonment and overpopulation in Madison County (over 13 million nationwide). These abandoned, abused and neglected animals are the reason why the APA was established and exists today.

For those who are not familiar with our function, we are a non-profit organization that accepts and keeps abandoned cats and dogs that owners may be unable to keep. We provide them a home until they are adopted by a new owner.

We do not have euthanasia performed except for medical reasons. We are not funded through any city, state or federal agencies. We depend solely upon voluntary contributions to maintain the shelter.

Due to limited space, we cannot accept every animal that comes to us. We ask that you please consider us when you are adopting a pet so that we might continue to provide this service for the animals and to the community.

We are presently caring for 40 cats and 18 dogs in need of homes. We have adopted out over 600 cats and dogs since we opened 3½ years ago.

At present we have been forced to cease accepting animals due to decreased funds to maintain the shelter.

We are seeking support in our continued effort to provide care for these animals and hope readers will respond by sending $1, $5, $10 or more to the APA, Box 1311, Granite City, IL 62040.

All donations are appreciated and volunteers are welcomed to assist in the care of the animals. For more information you may call 931-7030 on Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to noon. We are relying upon your help. Thank you for your generosity and concern.

Hazelwood East verdict bad news for journalists?

High school journalists can study the U.S. Constitution, but the Supreme Court ruling Jan. 13 means students can't practice it. The Supreme Court overturned an appeals court decision that the rights of three Missouri students at Hazelwood East High School were violated when Principal Robert Reynolds removed two pages from the Spectrum.

The pages contained first-person accounts of teen pregnancy and divorce. Reynolds said he was protecting the students' privacy, and the school district from being sued.

The articles contained interviews with students who described their sex lives, and relationships to parents. Names were changed, presumably to protect the less than innocent.

The student journalists sued when their articles were cut. They demanded their rights as citizens.

They received court-approved censorship.

High school is important to the political acculturation of our youth. It is where our republic's ideals are formally taught, for the last time, in many cases.

It is sad to think what Constitutional lesson was taught to students not only at Hazelwood East, but across our nation, when the court dropped its 5-3 verdict on them.

Students' rights as partakers in freedom were abridged as surely as any banana republic restricts what its press prints.

But the verdict isn't entirely disheartening. Principles of freedom certainly are not going to be chilled out of the hearts and minds of high school students.

What will likely happen is something altogether more healthy in a democracy, if not as respectable.

I expect, slowly at first, and then more frequently, to hear that little underground newspapers are cropping up at schools where principals hinder the free flow of ideas.

These little underground papers will be inferior to normal high school papers: language saltier, subjects more likely juvenile and undeveloped.

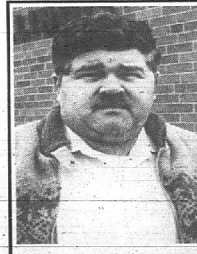

For well or woe, in restricting the student press, the Supreme Court's decision might have set it free.

Facts in this article were supplied by the PA's Washington Bureau.

Spectrulite buys Dow business

MADISON — The Dow Chemical Co., Midland, Mich., has sold its magnesium photoengraving operation in Findlay, Ohio, to Spectrulite Consortium Inc. (SCI) of Madison for an undisclosed amount. The sale was concluded Dec. 31 and disclosed Jan. 25.

The Findlay operation employs 20 people in the production of magnesium printing plates for photoengraving. Dow had operated the plant since 1959.

SCI plans to continue the operation in Dow's facility until mid-year, and then transfer it to a new building in the Findlay area to retain the skilled personnel currently making the product. Most of Dow's workers in the plant will transfer to SCI employment.

"This sale strengthens Dow's position in the magnesium business," said Ronald E. Taylor, global commercial director for Dow's magnesium products. "It allows us to concentrate our efforts on supplying primary magnesium, alloys and extrusions to metal fabricators, aluminum producers and other major markets."

"We will continue to supply the photoengraving market through magnesium ingots sold to SCI. We will also continue to be the major magnesium supplier to SCI."

William A. Barnes, president and chief executive officer of SCI, said, "This acquisition provides an excellent forward integration of SCI's businesses. We're proud to have acquired an operation in which quality and customer service are the top objectives, and SCI will continue and enhance this commitment."

Dow is the lowest-cost producer of magnesium metal and chemicals, with annual capacity of 190 million pounds. More than half of production is for alloying aluminum, and 1 percent goes into magnesium photoengraving plates.

Spectrulite Consortium Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of the privately-owned corporation, Spectrulite Inc., is a producer of cast, extruded and rolled magnesium and aluminum. The world's largest producer of wrought magnesium, SCI supplies products to the aerospace, military and commercial markets.

SCI occupies facilities here formerly operated by Consolidated Aluminum and, before that, by Dow Chemical.

Magna announces proposed merger

Magna and New Holland Farmers Bank agreed for the bank to become a wholly-owned subsidiary of Magna.

William S. Badgley, chairman of the board of Magna Group

Inc., Belleville, and Wilbur G. Buse, president of New Holland Farmers Bank, New Holland, Ill., made the announcement.

New Holland assets are $17.4 million, deposits are $14.5 million, net loans are $10 million, and shareholders' equity are $2.1 million.

Magna owns 16 banks, a trust company, a data processing firm and a mortgage company.

Steel pension costs eyed

By John Hartsock
P-R/J Washington bureau

WASHINGTON — Lawyers and lawmakers will take the thorny issue of the steel industry's beleaguered pension plans in the next few weeks. What they decide could determine the future of old-age benefits for steelworkers — if not the future of the industry itself.

On Feb. 5 the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp. and LTV Steel will go to court to have a judge decide if LTV must reassume pension programs for its steelworkers. The federal agency took over the company last year after the company sought to reorganize under Chapter 11 federal bankruptcy laws.

And when Congress returns later this month, senators from steel states will take up legislation that would create a federal authority to refinance troubled pension plans like that of LTV Steel.

At the heart of the matter, steel companies confront a $5.7 billion pension fund deficit. Some, like LTV, have tried for bankruptcy, and the PBGC, a federal agency that insures pensions for 40 million workers, has taken over their under-funded pension plans.

The court case, in the Federal District Court for the Southern District of New York, could establish a precedent for similar cases in the future.

If the court finds that Cleveland-based LTV Steel does not have to reassume the fund, other financially pressed steel companies may look on divesting expensive pension programs through Chapter 11 bankruptcy as a strategy for survival. But as in the case of LTV, it could also mean reduced benefits doled out to retirees by PBGC.

"There is that risk," said Gary Ford, PBGC general counsel. "A ruling against PBGC would deprive us of a remedy for abuse of insurance programs that Congress expressly provided for. The issue is a very important one for pension insurance programs we administer."

PBGC announced in September that it was reorganizing its pension programs to LTV Steel. But LTV opposes reassuming the financial burden and is seeking a court order to quash the PBGC action.

"Just because you're in bankruptcy doesn't mean you're not subject to federal laws that protect the public health, welfare and safety," Ford said, outlining PBGC's argument. "Just because you're in bankruptcy doesn't mean you can violate the federal pollution laws. Likewise, you can't abuse the federal pension insurance system just because you're in bankruptcy."

PBGC also charges that LTV Steel has experienced an upturn in its financial fortunes, enough of an upturn that the steelmaker plan termination insurance program benefits — called "follow-on" benefits — not covered by PBGC's administration of the old LTV Steel pension plan.

In court briefs, PBGC lawyers said, "LTV abused the pension plan termination insurance program by establishing follow-on plans that essentially continued the terminated plans, with PBGC picking up much of the cost."

Legislation passed by Congress in the fall made it more difficult for steel companies to divest their pension plans by declaring bankruptcy. But it also provides that could permit companies to slip through, Ford said. The court case would set an "important precedent" for returning pension plans to steel companies that have, at least in the eyes of the PBGC, regained their financial health, he said.

LTV officials declined to speculate on the outcome of the court fight, but acknowledged that reassuming the pension plans could place a burden on the company at a time when it is fighting for its survival. PBGC's claims about the company's finances notwithstanding.

"If the case would go the other way, then the company needs to look at its financial situation," said Dave Carroll, an LTV Steel vice president.

LTV lawyers are using the shield of the federal bankruptcy laws not to reassume the pension plans. The law was designed to protect bankrupt companies from creditors, leaving the company breathing space until it can come up with a reorganization plan.

Carroll said that if the company is forced to reassume the pension plans, it may, on its own initiative, have to terminate the plans. And that, he acknowledged, could lead to another round of legal wrangling.

Other companies will watch closely for the outcome. And one company, Bethlehem Steel, has made no secret that it has been considering Chapter 11 bankruptcy. It, too, has under-funded pension plans.

"We're not going to be a bail-out for the steel industry," said John Heinz, R-Pa., and Howard Metzbaum, D-Ohio, a new round of lobbying on the proposed federal pension authority awaits them after Congress reconvenes Jan. 25.

Under legislation they sponsored, steel companies would place their assets and securities in trust to the authority, which would then sell shares of the assets as federal securities.

The 10-year plan would cost $20 million a year. The debt would give the steel industry a respite, during which it could channel scarce funds to upgrade outdated facilities.

Not surprisingly, crippled companies such as Bethlehem Steel favor the plan. But healthy companies with pension programs paid-in-full, such as USX, oppose a plan they say amounts to a bail-out.

The Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources is looking at legislation, said Larry Atkins, staff director of the Senate Special Committee on Aging and a close Heinz aide.

Olin foresees solid markets

Olin Corporation's Defense Systems Group, headquartered in East Alton, expects "solid" markets in both defense and commercial markets in 1988, in spite of uncertainty regarding the economy and concerns about a possible recession.

Donald W. Griffin, president of the group and executive vice president of Olin Corp., said that though he expects to see the continued effects of Gramm-Rudman limits on the U.S. defense budget, he expects certain defense group programs to be funded.

Resumption of space shuttle flights will provide increased revenue for the group from sale of auxiliary power unit gas generators used on the shuttle itself and from sale of rocket engines used on many commercial and military satellites, he said.

Griffin expects to see a continuation of strong commercial markets in sporting ammunition and continued lower levels of imported products from Western Europe due to the weak dollar.

"We're bullish on our commercial markets and anticipate maintaining our strong market share position in 1988," he said.

Improvements enhance resale value of home

Board of Realtors

Home improvements should be viewed from two perspectives — first as an expense that will pay for itself through your costs depends on the type of investment that could enhance your property's value.

According to the Granite City Board of Realtors and the National Association of Realtors, whether you can recoup your costs depends on the features your house already has, what improvements you make and how soon you sell.

If your home project is not standard for your neighborhood, it could give your home the advantage of being unique. But it could make your home less appealing to a prospective buyer.

Ask your friends and neighbors for recommendations for a reliable contractor. The NAR advises that you give a detailed description of the job to at least three contractors with requests for bids. Get written estimates and keep accurate records.

Below is a sampling of home improvements, the average cost and the recoverable percentage of that cost:

Landscaping, $2,500-5,000, 75-100 percent.
Bath, second full (added to one) $5,000-10,000, 100 percent.

second full (added to one-half) $5,000-10,000, 80 percent; third full, $5,000-10,000, up to 50 percent; half added, 25 percent; two-story with one full, $2,000-3,000, 100 percent.

Bedroom, conversion of unused space, $6,000-8,000, 100 percent (third); addition, $10,000-15,000, 75-85 percent (fourth), up to 65 percent (fifth bedroom).

Deck, $3,000, 70 percent.

Enclosed porch, $5,000-6,000, 50-60 percent.

Exterior painting, $1,000-2,000, 30-40 percent (frame houses).

Exterior siding, $3,000-8,000, 75 percent or more.

Fireplace, $1,500-3,000, 75 percent or more.

Garage, $3,500-6,000, 50-100 percent.

Kitchen remodeling (excluding appliances) $3,500-10,000, 60-70 percent.

Landscaping, $50-2,000, 40-60 percent.

Skylight, $3,000, up to 66 percent.

Swimming pool, $10,000, 0-40 percent.

The chart was compiled by "1988 Home Guide," published by Real Estate Today, the official magazine of the National Association of Realtors.

Ask Mr. Meltzer

By Bernard Meltzer

Maintenance payment at condo called 'must'

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My home is located in a development where the condominium association takes care of the outside maintenance. They paint every three years, cut the grass, trim the hedges and do general outside maintenance. For this I'm charged $80 per month. I find I can get all this done for less than $50 per month by a private person who promises to do just as good a job. I've notified the condominium association that I'm going to use my own people. They say "no." I say "yes." So far we are at a standoff. What is right?

Answer: I'm sorry to say that the condominium association is right. Read your deed, and you will see it is there in black and white giving them the right to insist that you use their people. So here is what it boils down to: You can still use your people, but you will have to pay the $80 per month anyway.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My 30-year-old daughter is living with an obnoxious man. I intend to leave my house to my daughter but I'm afraid she may marry him someday and he'll have an interest in the house.

Here is my idea: I plan to leave the house to my daughter but my will, providing for her, never to marry him. Is this an excellent idea or what?

Answer: The idea may be excellent but it won't work. Here is why. To prohibit your daughter from marrying that man is against public interest and that part of the will won't hold.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: According to our family income, I can spend $225,000 on a home. At that price, I can get myself a single-family detached house or a co-ownership apartment in a big building. Both units are located in a wonderful neighborhood.

Which do you think will have a better price trend in years to come? Your opinion is important. Answer: In my opinion, the single-family detached house will have a better price trend in years to come, everything being equal. It has been the last 10 years, and I think it will be true in the next 10 years.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I rent an apartment on the second floor of a two-story house. On the first floor is a ladies' clothing shop. At least that is what was there when I first moved in six months ago. Now it has become a smelly restaurant. The odors come through the floors, windows and hallways.

I told the landlord, "I'm breaking my lease and moving." His answer was, "You can break your lease but you owe me the remaining six months rent on your lease." Is this true?

Answer: I vote no. The occupancy that your landlord has brought into the first floor of the building is of a nature that does not allow you to enjoy the use of your apartment.

Since that use (the restaurant) is subsequent to your moving, you have the right to sue. What you have done, Mr. Landlord, forces me out.

Consumer tips

By Nell Hartigan

Illinois attorney general

Q. What is a pyramid scheme? Are they illegal?

A. Pyramid schemes are illegal schemes in which large numbers of people at the bottom of the pyramid pay money to a few people at the top. Each new participant pays for the chance to advance to the top and profit from payments of others he or she recruits to join.

Each time another level rises to the top, a new level must be added to the bottom. The pyramid grows twice as large as the one before. Of course, the pyramid may collapse long before you reach the top which is usually the outcome. In order for everyone in a pyramid scheme to profit, there would have to be a never ending supply of potential (and willing) recruits. The pyramid scheme is fraudulent in that participants in the scheme are consciously or unconsciously deceiving themselves. They recruit. Few people would ever join if they knew the odds were against their ever receiving the money they were guaranteed. These schemes are illegal and those who promote them can be charged with the subject to fines and arrested.

Petish objects to name being left off report

GRANITE CITY — The maker of a Freedom of Information request to District 9 objected to the School Board on Jan. 19 for leaving his name off a report dealing with his request.

John Petish Sr., Granite City, requested a copy of the audio tape of the Nov. 24 board meeting. In the minutes of the Dec. 15 meeting, it states that an individual had requested a copy of the tape.

Petish told the board he resented being called an individual and said he wanted his name entered into the minutes.

Board President Monroe Worthen told Petish that Butch Peterson, an associate of board attorney William Schooley, said it was not necessary to identify the person who made the request.

Rich Brinkhoff, District 9's administrative assistant for elementary instruction, said he was following policy by not including Petish's name in the report. Under new state regulations, a regular report must be made to the board concerning Freedom of Information requests, Brinkhoff said.

Superintendent Gib Walmsley said he didn't know that Petish wanted his name on the report.

Petish was given a copy of the minutes of the Nov. 24 meeting. Instead of the tape, the board voted Dec. 15 to erase the tapes after minutes of the meetings are approved.

Firefighter visits school, gives safety procedures

GRANITE CITY — Firefighter Michael Karlechik visited both kindergarten sessions at Marshall Elementary School Jan. 13. He is a member of the Long Lake Volunteer Fire Department.

Karlechik explained a typical fireman's attire. He wore his uniform, boots, coat, helmet and air tanks in an effort to help the children learn not to be afraid of firefighters when faced with an emergency situation.

He explained procedures for leaving a burning building, and he told the pupils to "stop, drop and roll" if their clothes catch on fire.

Karlechik's daughter, Emilee, is a first grade student at Parkview Elementary School and his son, Jamie, is a student at Granite City High School.

On Asbury's dean's list

Priscilla Brown, Madison, a student at Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky., has been named to the dean's list for the fall quarter. Brown is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Vernon Brown of Marion.

Asbury College, named after Bishop Francis Asbury, first Methodist bishop and circuit rider in America, was founded in 1890 as a Christian liberal arts school in the heart of the bluegrass region. More than 10,000 graduates serve around the world in nearly every vocation.

Cosmopolitan in scope, the student body of 950 is multi-denominational, from 42 states and 16 foreign countries. The college is known for its emphasis on academic excellence formulated with a Christian context.

Students learn about Australia

GRANITE CITY — Joyce Curran, substitute teacher at Parkview Elementary School, recently taught her third grade students about the continent of Australia.

Students learned about the history, geography, industry, education and people in the "land-down under."

As this year marks Australia's 200th anniversary, the students made cards and banners and wrote letters which were sent to Australia, along with pictures of the class at work. The letters will travel on a U.S. Coast Guard ship and will be delivered to third grade children in Australia.

Curran and her pupils learned about the anniversary celebration and the letter-writing project from their Weekly Reader.

Two recognized for achievement

Two full-time students from Granite City who attend McKendree College, Lebanon, Ill., have been recognized for outstanding academic performance in the 1987-88 fall term.

Their grade point averages for the term, at least 3.8, qualify them for the dean's list for that semester. The two are Gloria H. Falbe and Neda Sanders.

On Quincy dean's list

Dr. Kenneth Conroy, academic dean at Quincy (Ill.) College, has announced Robin Hilker, daughter of Rose Hilker, Granite City, was named to the dean's list for the first semester of the 1987-88 school year.

SIU debaters still tops

Southern Illinois University at Carbondale's debate squad retained its top national ranking after four days of action, Jan. 22-25, in three separate tournaments.

An SIUC team won the Weber State (Utah) Invitational Tournament and finished third in a meet at the University of Utah, while other SIUC twosomes finished in the elimination rounds of the Wheaton (Ill.) College Invitational Tournament.

SIUC competes in the Cross Examination Debate Association, which ranks collegiate squads nationally.

SIUC had three teams in the elimination rounds at Wheaton.

John Lapham of Seattle and BiBi Christoff, 85 Briarview Lane, Granite City, placed ninth.

Madrigal Feast set at BAC

The Masterworks Choral "Madrigal Feast" will be held at Belleville Area College Sunday, Feb. 7, at 6:30 p.m.

The feast, in the Belleville Campus cafeteria, 2500 Carlyle Road, will include a complete 16th century banquet and entertainment by the 60-member Masterworks Choral, in authentic costumes.

Tickets, by advance reservation only, are $15 general admission and $12 for students and may be ordered by calling 235-2700, ext. 205. Tickets may be purchased by MasterCard and VISA.

Seating will begin at 6 p.m., and the banquet will include a traditional wassail toast, beef-barley soup, prime rib of beef, baked potato, green beans with almonds, hunter's pudding flambe, iced tea and coffee.

She explained the "Seniors to the Rescue" program initiated by Principal Pat Schumann at the Grigsby Junior High School and sponsored by the R.S.V.P.

The program uses the services of volunteer seniors who are willing to tutor students who ask for their assistance, in a one-to-one situation.

The results have exceeded expectations for students and tutors, she said. There are now more requests for assistance than there are volunteers to help. Seniors are being asked to tutor a half-hour session twice a week, she said. Transportation can be arranged.

Chouteau Township Senior Citizens met last week at the Civic Center, where this month's theme was Winter Wonder Land. Dinner was served to 76 members and two guests.

The Rev. Willard Myers, club chaplain, gave the blessing. The group observed a moment of silence in memory of member Irene Ramach, who died Jan. 7.

Following the business meeting, election of officers was held.

Incumbent officers re-elected were: president, Maxine Dunham; secretary, Bernice Myers; and treasurer, Daisy Ferguson. Retiring First Vice President John DeCota was replaced by Ruth Jensen. Pearl Turner was elected as second vice president to replace Ruth Jensen.

The group held a "Fun Auction" of white elephant articles. Pat Polly, Chouteau Township clerk, served as auctioneer. An art and crafts table, manned by Turner, featured handmade goods displayed for sale.

Two new members, Thelma Morcan and Carlene Lee, joined the club.

Melinda Colbert, a fourth grade student at Mitchell School, celebrated her 10th birthday with a "50s" party hosted by her parents, Tom and Nancy Colbert.

Something... they don't learn in school!

We are proud to have the opportunity to provide young boys and girls with the responsibility of delivering our newspaper. Responsibility and financial management are two basics that are on the job training when a boy or girl accepts a newspaper delivery route. The responsibility is great because the entire effort of the newspaper depends on their delivery of the newspaper on time no matter what weather conditions or other circumstances arise. Being an independent merchant, he or she is responsible financially for the payment and collection of monies for newspapers delivered. We recognize the responsibilities both financial and job performance and we would like to congratulate the girls and boys who value this experience and do an excellent job of satisfying our customers.

'Roxanne' video shows Martin knows romance

By Nick and Eileen Pacino

It is as plain as the nose on your face that Steve Martin turns in his best performance to date (on video) in the enchanting comedy romance "Roxanne" (1987). Martin shows admirable restraint and scales down his natural insanity as C.D. Bales, a fire chief in a ski resort town who is in charge of a bumbling group of volunteers.

He is an athletic intellectual who has the sweetest disposition, but whose love life has been kept at, ahem, nose's length by his prodigious proboscis. He already has tried plastic surgery and it is the perfect perch for his pet bird, so he's sadly resigned to it. But it does seem to provoke drunks at the local bar, whom C.D. brilliantly puts down with salves from his own voluminous collection of nose jokes.

With a heart as big as his schnoz, Bales falls for the beautiful Roxanne (Daryl Hannah), an astronomer who has come to town on the trail of a comet; and who is mooning after hunkish firefighter Chris (Rick Rossovich).

Chris is a lunkish, lusty illiterate who enlists C.D. to put words in his mouth and on paper that will melt the damsel's heart and other parts—which they do. But then Roxanne leaves town and C.D. starts his own letter-writing campaign and Rick starts sniffing around a local bar maid with whom his tongue is not gotten by the cat.

Martin's affection for the 17th century Edmund Rostand play, on which he based his script, is obvious, and he proves in this warm and tender work that he can take comedy seriously. RCA/Columbia Pictures Home Video, rated PG for language, color, 107 mins., VHS/Beta, stereo.

"Diane Keaton, one of Woody Allen's favorite actresses, steps behind the camera to direct a delightful little film called 'Heaven.' We're not sure you can call it a documentary, but it does attempt to document the diverse ideas about paradise of a multidimensional cross section of Hollywood citizens."

Keaton clearly is inspired by her mentor, Allen, in the funny montage of "talking heads" blinking, winking, laughing or deadpanning the camera as they nonchalantly or passionately respond to questions like "Are you afraid to die?" and "Is there sex in heaven?"

Keaton found her subjects on Hollywood Boulevard, which explains why they are decidedly untypical people for the most part. They include a masseuse who claims to have been visited by extraterrestrials; a Salvation Army couple who believe dying is "being promoted to glory"; a young woman who thinks God is like Groucho Marx, always playing practical jokes; and even Keaton's grandmother, who did not believe in Heaven and died soon after the movie was made.

Keaton is the off-camera interviewee, and she is able to elicit some fascinating confessions of doubt, certainly, blasphemy and hope from everyone from children to evangelical preachers. Each question is intercut with clips from old motion pictures like "Metropolis," "Ecstasy" with Hedy Lamarr and the all-black film "The Green Pastures," as well as footage of religious institutions and films and scenes of cities and the earth crumbling. All of the video is edited skillfully by Paul Barnes. Keaton's art director Barbara Ling and cinematographer Fredrick Elmes ("Blue Velvet") add an indispensable "look" to the film that keeps the narrative from ever sagging. This is definitely a heavenly gigglefest of a film worth watching again and again. Pacific Arts Video, not rated but call it PG for language and adult theme, color, black and white, 88 mins., VHS/Beta.

"On Dec. 27, 1947, television's first popular kids' show, 'Howdy Doody,' debuted on NBC. It lasted 13 years, 2,343 programs; entertaining millions at home and in the 'Peanut Gallery.'"

In "It's Howdy Doody Time: a 40-Year Celebration," Buffalo, Bob Smith brings Doodyville back to life with some nostalgic clips from past shows, as well as guests like Gary Coleman, Milton Berle, Johnny Carson, Dick Clark, Pee-wee Herman and Jerry Mathers.

Of course, there also is birthday boy Howdy and his pals, Clarabell the Clown, Phineas T. Bluster, Cornelius Cobb, Chief Thundertrud shouting "Kovabunga!" and more. This is a loving and entertaining tribute for young and old. Fries Home Video, rated G, color, black and white, 100 mins., VHS/Beta.

'Robocop' video spoofs future

By Nick and Eileen Pacino
Staff affiliates

If we must have blood-and-guts films, then at least let them be tempered by a point of view; give us a hero we can identify with, one who does not live to kill. And let the villain be someone real, not a stereotype. Give us something like "Robocop" (1987). Dutch director Peter Verhoeven's sophisticated social satire.

"Robocop" is a terrific little film even though saturated with blood, because it makes a statement about the nightmare of manipulative, unchecked commercialism run by cold-blooded corporate yuppie. Its figurehead is Dick Jones, played in a fiendishly sarcastic way by Ronny Cox.

His giant corporation, Security Concepts Inc., imaginatively but not too quality-control minded, is producing robots to augment an impotent police force in futuristic Detroit. His only response when his "enforcement droid" ED-209 goes out of control and kills some executives at a board meeting is: "I'm sure it's just a glitch."

Enter Robocop, part man, part machine, all cop, as the promos say; formerly known as policeman Murphy before he was hideously blown to pieces, then reconstructed in miraculous metal. Even though Rob Botkin's cyborg creation is terrific, it's the personality inside that's commanding.

Peter Verhoeven makes Murphy very vulnerable, for all his mechanical prowess. Murphy is a lost soul, searching for his shattered memory for the identity of his killers, refusing to give up on his humanity. But he also is on a mission, and when good triumphs over evil, you want to cheer. "Serve the Public Trust. Uphold the Law. Protect the Innocent" and check out "Robocop." Orion Home Video, rated R for violence, language, nudity, color, 103 mins., VHS/Beta, hi-fi, closed captioned.

"The superpopular rap group, 'The Fat Boys,' makes its starring debut in a slapstick comedy, 'Disorderlies' (1987). Warner Home Video, rated PG for language, adult situations, color, 87 mins., VHS/Beta, hi-fi.

Love songs to entertain at banquet

Grace Baptist Church, 2600 Edwards St., will host its seventh annual Valentine's Banquet at 7 p.m. Feb. 13. The meal, to be catered by Brenda's Restaurant, Madison, will include chicken, roast beef, scalloped potatoes, corn, green beans, salad, dessert and beverage.

The cost will be $5.50 per person. The price will include entertainment by church members singing country, gospel and contemporary music; featuring love songs. Comedy skits and routines will be performed.

"The Valentine Banquet has always been one of the church's social highlights of the year," Jones said.

Tickets are limited. Arrangements can be made by calling the church at 877-6572. A nursery service will be available at a cost of $1 per child.

Bales to speak at Calvary

Dr. Bual Bales, native of Oklahoma, will speak at morning and evening services Feb. 17 at Calvary Baptist Church, 3000 Washington Ave.

Bales attended school at Hannibal-LaGrange, Hannibal, Mo.; Northeast Missouri State, Kirksville, Mo.; and the Fort Worth Seminary, Fort Worth, Texas. He was director of missions in northeastern Missouri and was pastor at First Baptist Church, St. Charles, for 21 years. He has served as interim pastor of several Baptist churches in Missouri.

Morning services will begin at 10:40. Evening services begin at 7.

The chairman of deacons, Earl Phelps, extends an invitation to the public to attend.

Calvary to host gospel singer

Milo Herrick, formerly the featured soloist with the Jimmy Swaggart ministries, will appear at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 14 at Calvary Pentecostal Assembly, 4650 Maryville Road.

Milo is internationally known as a gospel singer.

For more information, call pastor Harold Maynard at 931-4060.

Happy Strings recruiting

The Happy Strings parent organization wants to recruit new members of all ages who are interested in learning to play a stringed instrument known as the "tambura."

At present, the Happy Strings Tamburitans consist of junior, senior and mothers' groups.

The junior and senior groups have performed at a variety of functions, from the inauguration celebration of American Legion Auxiliary state president Dottie Hinson to the Glen Fest in Glen Carbon. Each year, the junior and senior groups travel to participate in a tamburitza festival.

"The sole purpose of the social organization is to promote and conserve the rich culture of Yugoslavia," a spokesman said.

To be eligible, one must be at least 7 years old. All ages are welcome.

If interested, contact Marilyn Boner at 451-7505 or Gloria Garcia at 451-1528.

Submillimeter astronomy provides new look at space

By James Cornell
Smithsonian News Service

Billions of miles away, deep within a cool, dense cloud of seething dust, gas and molecules, a new baby is being born. Hidden from human eyes, this infant will grow in size, power and brilliance until, untold millions of years from now, it bursts forth full-blown from its cosmic cocoon as a new star.

Incredibly, the conception, birth and early evolution of stars — the basic components of our observable universe — remain as mysterious today as they were nearly 400 years ago when the first telescopes were trained on the sky. The details of a star's formative years are unknown simply because the vast, dusty shrouds surrounding their birthplaces are impenetrable to optical telescopes.

Now, however, a new breed of telescopes sensitive to submillimeter radio waves promises to help solve the puzzle of stellar birth, as well as a host of other astronomical mysteries ranging from the energy source of quasars to the temperatures on other planets. (A millimeter is one-thousandth of a meter, or about four-hundredths of an inch. A meter is 3.3 feet.)

"The submillimeter portion of the spectrum provides the best means for probing the physical and chemical conditions in molecular clouds," says Dr. Thomas G. Phillips, director of the California Institute of Technology's new submillimeter telescope on Mauna Kea in Hawaii.

"Star formation is a key to processes occurring throughout the universe," Phillips notes. "And submillimeter instruments may finally permit us to observe how an interstellar cloud actually collapses to form a protostar." Stars, both new and old, emit light in a virtual rainbow of colors, or wavelengths, ranging from radio waves a few thousand feet long to X-ray and gamma-ray waves no longer than the diameter of an atom. Most of this radiation is invisible to the human eye. While modern astronomers using instruments both on the ground and in space now routinely observe the heavens across almost this entire electromagnetic spectrum, the submillimeter band — a portion between radio and infrared waves — remains largely unexplored.

"In a real sense," says Dr. Irwin Shapiro, director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass., "this is the last frontier of ground-based astronomy."

And it is a rich frontier. Those astronomical sources emitting most of their radiation in the submillimeter band are considered "cool objects" with average temperatures no more than a few score degrees above absolute zero (-459.7 degrees Fahrenheit). Such temperatures are found in the churning clouds of gas and dust where new stars are born.

"Repeatedly, discoveries of novel cosmic phenomena have been made by men and women who looked at the universe with new instruments and came to see it from a fresh perspective," Dr. Martin Harwit, a former director of the Smithsonian's National Air and Space Museum, "we must make a deliberate effort to... introduce radically new observational techniques, permitting a view of the universe, through brand-new channels."

The newest channel — submillimeter astronomy — promises to open exciting, and maybe even unexpected, windows on the cosmos.

Devils whip Trojans, 93-69

Turner's 17 assists key Venice offense in romp

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

VENICE — With a little hindsight, maybe it should have been obvious what was going to happen.

Leading up to Tuesday's Madison-Venice showdown at the Venice gym, everyone wondered who was going to win. But like the legendary old gunfighter being challenged by the young hotshot, the Red Devils had something to prove.

As if to show rumors of their pending demise were somewhat premature, the Red Devils came out on the offensive and didn't let up until they had handed the Trojans a 93-69 shellacking before an overflow crowd.

The Venice fans left happy, the Trojan fans left angry. Unfortunately, someone else left the gym with a bundle of merchandise from the Trojan locker room. When the Trojans repaired to their quarters after the game, they discovered they had been robbed. Madison coach Rich Essington thought "a couple of hundred dollars" worth of goods had been taken.

That's terrible something like that has to happen," Red Devil coach Clinton Harris said. "Maybe we shouldn't schedule games like this if we're going to have that. But we're going to find out who did it and we will prosecute."

The clubhouse theft made a bad night even worse for the Trojans (15-5). They came out hoping to avenge an earlier loss to the Devils (13-5), but Venice had lots to prove, or so they felt. "We got tired of the main thing we were going down," said forward Lionel Wiley, who shared scoring honors with Daryl Jackson as each player had 20 points.

It all added up. First, there was the traditional rivalry with Madison. Next was the fact the Devils had not played a home game since Dec. 15. And finally there were the whisperings that three losses in the last five games were signs of a Red Devil demise.

"We've been on the road for two months," Harris said. "And that might have been a reason we had been struggling. The boys were ready to get home and play here. And whenever teams like Venice, Madison or Lovejoy get together, you know you're going to have some fireworks."

While the main fireworks were detonated by Wiley, Jackson and Carlos Briggs (19 points), Dale Turner helped light the fire as he dished out 17 assists. The 6-2 senior guard ran the break efficiently and set up numerous easy layups as the Devils shot 65 percent (48 for 67).

"I think Dale and Sean Tunstall (of Vashon) are the two best guards in the area," Harris said. "We shot well tonight because we had so many layups. It was a good team effort working the ball around for good shots."

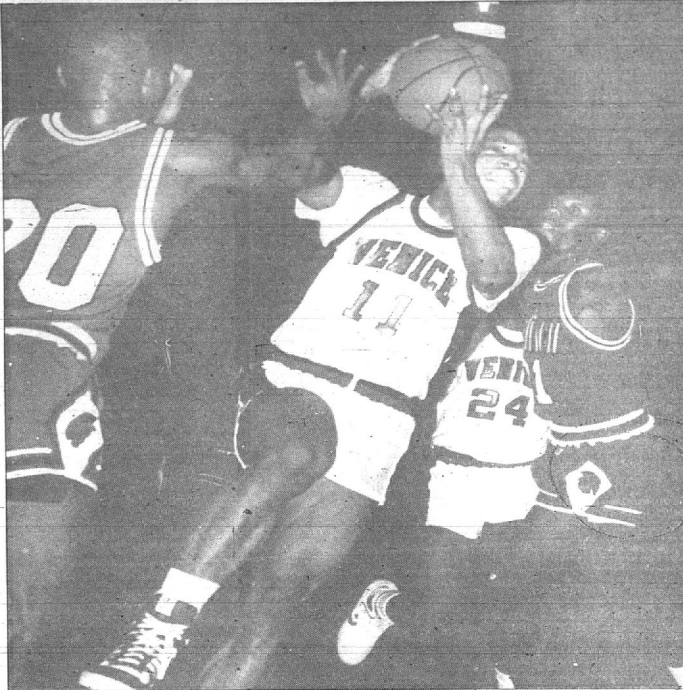

And the Devils didn't exactly beat a bunch of slouches. The Trojans came in with reasonable hopes of winning. But Venice's size advantage became more apparent when Steve Sanders picked up three early fouls, allowing Jackson, Wiley and Hosea King (10 points) plenty of room to operate in the paint.

"We didn't run our offense very well tonight," Essington said. "That's the main thing I'm disappointed in. Our defense wasn't really that bad."

The game was spirited from the outset after the Venice junior varsity had scored an exciting 65-61 win in the opener. Sanders had two early baskets but three fouls. Wiley had three baskets of his own and the Devils led 20-17 after one quarter.

Turner's no-look passes on the fast break led to layups for King and John Williams in the second quarter, but the Trojans still trailed only 39-32 at halftime.

Assistant

DALE TURNER of the Red Devils looks like he's going up for a shot as Madison's Jesse Leonard (20) and Clarence Williams defend. But Turner passed the ball off to John Williams at the last minute for one of his 17 assists in Venice's 93-69 victory. Turner also added 11 points and was one of five Devils in double figures in scoring.

Lafayette gets win over skaters

GRANITE CITY — Trying to win a hockey game without two of your top goal scorers is comparable to driving a car without two wheels. But Granite City strapped up Tuesday and tried to keep the machine on track anyway.

Unfortunately for the Warriors, they gave up three "cheap" goals to a strong Lafayette team on their way to a 7-3 loss at the Wilson Park rink.

"We gave away three cheap goals but I am pleased with the way we played," Warrior coach Garry Henson said. "The kids gave a good effort in the game and that's all you can ask."

"With two of our top four goal scorers out, our second line was inexperienced. Only Charlie Alexander had any varsity time last year and he has only played hockey for a couple of years."

Matt Krekovich missed the game with a bad knee and Matt Schnefke had a 102° fever.

The Lancers scored two goals from right in front of the net to jump on the Warriors. Lafayette then strung two more goals together just before the first period ended.

Matt Mize got a pass from Bill Noser in the front of the net to put the Lancers on top 3-0. Five seconds later, Mike Gulli took a loose puck off the faceoff, cruised in on John Rains and scored.

Granite City offset those tallies with two quick goals to open the second period. Richie Grogan took a perfect pass from Jim Robertson and put it in the lower left-hand corner of the net at the 1:56 mark.

Grogan then returned the assist favor to Robertson 13 seconds later. Grogan let go with a slap shot from the point and Robertson directed it from the left side of the net to make the score 4-2. The point for Robertson made him the first Warrior to register 80 points in a season. The sophomore finished with three points on the night, improving his season total to 62.

Lancer forward Ciolli, who finished with three goals and three assists, continued to hover around the net and ruined the Granite City comeback party. With the teams playing four men

Garland stressing team performance at regional

By Carl Jacobs
Staff writer

Mike Garland would like to see his Warriors capture as many individual championships at the Belleville East Regional as possible.

But with an eye on the team concept, Garland is more concerned about the second, third and fourth place finishers than the individual crowns.

"With how tough of a regional we are in, I have been telling the kids how critical it is to obtain a third- or fourth-place finish if they can't win their weight class," Garland said.

"Two years ago we won the Granite City Holiday Tournament without one single individual championship and we won the St. Charles Tournament this year with a couple of champions and a lot of places."

In the St. Charles journey, the Warriors captured three individual titles and added nine second through fifth-place finishes to win the team title.

Granite City will need a similar performance in the regional to upset the favored Cahokia Comanches. Garland is only counting on getting two No. 1 seeds — Todd Hutchinson at 98 pounds and Brent Davis at 112.

Hutchinson sports a 28-6 record and Davis carries a 31-2 record into the regionals. In addition to the No. 1 seeds, the Warriors could lead several lower seeds. Scott Moss at 119 pounds is 25-9; Dale Breech, heavyweight, is 24-8; Rich Fenoglio, 138, is 20-7; Terry Stanley, 185, is 21-11; and Jerold Moss, 128, is 15-8. All have legitimate shots at a regional seed.

Rich Smalbie, 17-17 at 105 pounds and Dan Grayson, 15-16 at 167, have outside chances at a seed.

"If you lost to four other wrestlers, you'll be in your regional, you won't get a seed," Garland said. "That's the main criteria they base it on."

Garland said there are bound to be a couple of upsets in this year's regional — the same thing that may have cost the Warriors the regional last year.

"Almost every year there is one or two," Garland said. "We lost two weight classes we thought we might win last year."

Both Scott Moss and Billy Fitzgerald were casualties last year. "The Warriors will not be thinking of an upset Saturday," Bryan Pritchett is back from a groin injury and Fenoglio is healthy after being sick for a week.

"Both are healed and ready to go," Garland said. "There should be nothing holding them back."

Granite City, which is 15-9-1, could make its entire season with a strong showing in the regionals. A Holiday-type performance from the Warriors could steal the show.

"It's hard to say how things are going to turn out," Garland said. "It depends who matches up with who and who knocks off each other."

Joining Granite City and Cahokia in the regional will be Belleville West, Belleville East, Belleville Althoff, East St. Louis, East St. Louis Lincoln, Mascoutah and O'Fallon. See

Unbeaten Indians scalp Lady Warriors

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — Sometimes those officials think they know everything.

Early in the third quarter of Monday's girls basketball game at Memorial Gym, one of the game officials turned and stated the obvious.

"It doesn't take long to figure out what teams don't have a good ballhandling guard when the pressure starts, does it?" he said.

That official, like most of the other people in the gym, could hear the rumblings of the pending avalanche. The Lady Warriors were resting somewhat comfortably on the mountainside at halftime, trailing the unbeaten Mascoutah Indians by only seven points.

But the Indian snowball rolled off the cliff and engulfed the Warriors in a storm of turnovers as Mascoutah raised its record to 21-0 with a 61-32 win over Granite City.

For the Lady Warriors, it marked the first time they had lost more than two games in a row this year and put them at the .500 level. But the story was an all too familiar one for John Hutchings.

"We panicked in the third quarter," he said. "We were doing very well and then we panicked. We found a way to save something and then we got away from it. Ten seconds is plenty of time to get the ball to midcourt. But we hurried and made mistakes."

The result was a 26-7 quarter for the Indians, who are ranked third in the regional. Mascoutah scored 16 of the last 17 points in the quarter to turn a 21-14 lead at halftime into a 47-21 edge.

"I wish our stat sheets had turnovers on them," Hutchings said.

If they did, they might have shown early that the Warriors in the third period after an Indian basket, the scorer would look down to record the basket only to look up to see Mascoutah with the ball again.

"We're either exceptionally good or not good at all," Hutchings said. "I told them at halftime they would be looking at the press. They didn't do it much in the first half or they might have beaten us 'even worse.'"

Jennifer Cavanaugh helped the Warriors to a 10-9 lead after one quarter when she blocked a pair of shots. They didn't do it the minute. But 6-2 center Michelle Wayman scored the first two buckets of the second quarter and the Indians maintained a slim lead the rest of the half before exploding in the third quarter.

"A team not as good as Mascoutah would have still capitalized on half of the mistakes we made," Hutchings said. "But we still did better than I thought we would except for that one quarter. We just didn't shoot the ball well. That could have helped a little."

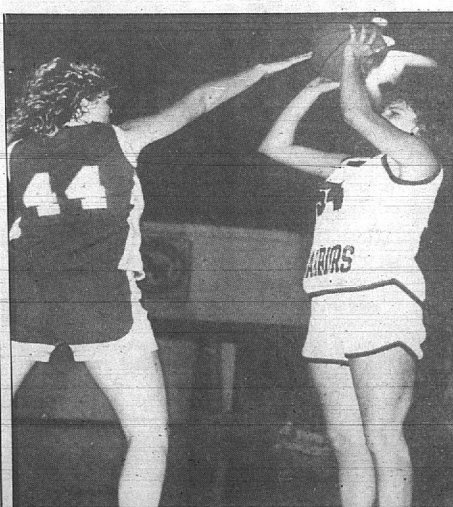

Cavanaugh had 14 points, 14 rebounds and five blocked shots, but still missed a lot of shots from close range. Kim Pawlak had 10 points from outside and Wendy Knollman had eight, but that was all the offense.

"Jennifer is pressing too hard," Hutchings said of his center, who had a couple of her shots blocked by Wayman.

Kerry Kane, a 5-10 senior, was the Indians' big gun with 22 points on baseline jumpers. The Warriors did a good job in a zone defense in the first half, but Mascoutah moved the ball around well with good passing and began to dominate the rebounding in the second half.

"I wish they would do it the way," Hutchings said. "But they are in a tough regional with the Belleville schools."

Tuesday's scheduled game at Belleville West was postponed because the weather forced cancellation of school at West. The game will be made up on Saturday at 2:30 p.m.

'Wrestlemania' coming to Collinsville Feb. 16

By Jim Woodcock

On live cable television Jan. 24 with millions of viewers cheering them on, The Jumping Bomb Angels finally reached their longtime goal by defeating The Glamour Girls for the World Wrestling Federation ladies tag team championship.

Typical of the WWF, revenge was soon being sought by the Glamour Girls and their manager, Jimmy "The Mouth of the South" Hart. Graciously, The Jumping Bomb Angels accepted the challenge from the former champs and agreed to a rematch on Feb. 16 at Collinsville High School's Fletcher Gym.

The ladies tag team affair is only one highlight of the program, the first ever sanctioned by the WWF in this area that will be held outside of The Arena or Kiel Auditorium.

Headlining the card will be a 14-man wrestle royal featuring some of the biggest names in the WWF, many of whom were part of Sunday's big Rumble Royal in Hamilton, Ont., where The Jumping Bomb Angels stripped The Glamour Girls of their championship belts.

In the wrestle royal, all 14 contestants will square off at once until only one wrestler remains. Wrestlers are eliminated by being thrown over the top rope.

Other matches scheduled for the 7:30 p.m. card include:

- A tag team bout pitting The Killer Bees (B. Brian Blair and Jumpin' Jim Brunzell) against The Bolsheviks (Nikolai Volkoff and Boris Zuykov of the Soviet Union).

- The Junkyard Dog vs. Sika, The Wild Samoan.

- A tag team battle featuring former U.S. Olympian Ken Patera and Bill Jack Hines vs. The Masked Conquistadors.

- Former WWF referee Dangerous Danny Davis vs. Sam Houston.

- Australia's Outback Jack vs. Danny Spivey.

- Midgits in a tag team event.

The event is being sponsored by the Collinsville High School student council, which will receive portions of the gate receipts at no risk to the organization.

Professional wrestling in the WWF has reached great national prominence in recent years with popular personalities such as world champion Hulk Hogan and established greats such as The Honky Tonk Man, King Kong Bundy, The Million Dollar Man, Ted Dibiase and legendary manager Bobby "The Brain" Heenan.

Indicative of the WWF's nationwide popularity, will be NBC's telecast tomorrow of the heavyweight championship bout between Hogan and odds-on favorite Andre the Giant. The event will be carried live from the Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis in prime time (7 p.m.), an all-time network first for professional wrestling.

As a result of the WWF's success, though, there is now a concern that professional wrestling here has perhaps lost a touch of the local appeal once associated with Wrestling at the Chase on Sunday mornings.

"Where you used to have 25 or 26 regional promoters in the nation, you now have one huge corporate organization in the WWF," said Larry Matysik, a promoter of the bout here and KPLR TV Channel 11's longtime wrestling commentator.

Herb Simmons is the event's other promoter.

"The WWF does some big things, like the prize thing in Indianapolis and Wrestlemania," Matysik said. "Now the thought here is it's time to begin rebuilding the individual area. Collinsville is a perfect place for the WWF."

Matysik said a major card scheduled for Feb. 19 in Kiel Auditorium was canceled so the WWF could come to Fletcher Gym.

"There are a lot of people who don't want to go to Kiel," he said. "This is going to be a lot more helpful getting people to wrestling matches. We have to get people know we care about them. And this is a heck of a card with 22 wrestlers."

Matysik said it is uncertain whether certain managers will accompany their wrestlers in Fletcher Gym.

Hart manages Davis in addition to the Glamour Girls. Sika, The Wild Samoan, is managed by Mr. Fuji. The Bolsheviks are managed by Slick, The Doctor of Style.

However, all three managers represent other wrestlers and may need to be elsewhere that evening.

"If The One Man Gang is wrestling in Chicago, Slick may be up there," Matysik said. "Or if Jim 'The Anvil' Neidhart and Bret 'The Hit Man' Hart are in Detroit, Jimmy Hart may be there. Right now, I'd say it's about a 50 percent chance there will be some managers here."

Tickets are $12 each for a limited number of ringside seats and $8 each elsewhere in the gym on a general admission basis.

Tickets are available at Collinsville High School, Vantage Video, Papa K's Pizza, Casey's Pharmacy and Alfonso's Pizzeria in Maryville.

For more information, call 286-3942.

Boosters meet

The Granite City High School Booster Club will hold its next meeting on Feb. 16 at 7:30 p.m. in the high school cafeteria.

Sports briefs

Hardee's has tickets for All-Star practice

Hardee's Food Systems Inc. is announcing a special opportunity for St. Louis hockey fans to see North America's 40 best players practice for the NHL All-Star Game.

The practice session will be held Feb. 5, the morning of the All-Star Game and begins at 10 a.m. and runs until noon at the St. Louis Arena.

All seating is general admission and the tickets are available at all St. Louis area Hardee's restaurants. Tickets are $3 and the net proceeds will be donated to the Greater St. Louis YMCA.

Jim Jensen, vice president of marketing for Hardee's, said sponsorship of the practice session is because of the intense demand for All-Star Game tickets.

"The game was sold out so quickly that a lot of fans, especially the younger ones, didn't really have a chance to see these players in person," he said. "By working with the NHL, we were able to come up with this special session and now the fans have an additional opportunity to see the players and coaches up close and in person."

Tickets are available at the more than 80 St. Louis area Hardee's restaurants.

QCSA schedules open registration

The Quad-City Soccer Association will have open registration Feb. 15-16 from 6-8 p.m. at the Brown Recreation Center at Franklin and Pontoon roads.

All interested boys and girls born anytime between 1975 and 1983 may sign up with a fee of $23 per child. Please bring a copy of a birth certificate.

For more information on registration, call 876-9000.

Bowland announces Bump N Bowl winners

Shirley Byrd, junior director of Bowland, would like to announce the winners in the Bump N Bowl League.

The first-place winners were the Hot Shots. Team members include, Emily Douglas, 5; Joshua Douglas, 3; Camille Sanders, 6; and Tiffany Sanders, 3. The second-place winners were the Little Rascals. Team members include Mark Hudson, 5; and Justin Somers, 3.

The high series were by Cory McCunney, 4, 198; and Cathy Haverman, 6, 208. The high games were by Justin Somers, 3, 106; and Lorri Kreher, 3, 125. The most improved bowlers were Eric Barger, 3, 10 pins; and Shena Scrum, 5, seven pins.

MAC announces soccer signups

The Mitchell Athletic Club will be holding signups for those boys and girls interested in playing soccer during the coming year.

Boys and girls in kindergarten through sixth grade are invited to sign up Feb. 8-9. The signups will be held at the Mitchell Grade School gym from 4:30 to 6 p.m. on each of those dates. The cost is $20 per child, which covers playing for one full year.

This year's spring session will hopefully begin in March and run until May. The fall season will be in September and October. Anyone who is unable to sign up on the above dates may call Terry Wallace at 931-0114 or Bob Little at 931-1489.

GC boosters sponsor chicken & beer dance

The Granite City High School Boosters Club will be sponsoring a chicken and beer dance on Feb. 13 at the St. Gregory Armenian Hall.

Tickets are $8 per person. The dance will last from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. The band Daybreak will be performing.

For more information on tickets, call 877-8011 or 876-3106.

But the Devils were relentless, building their lead to 53-39 before a Trojan press got them back to within eight. Venice then ran off a 12-2 spurt at the end of the third quarter for a 63-47 lead.

Things got a little ragged in the final period and the Devils might have topped the 100-point mark if they could have made some dunks. But they missed, and several of them got a little extra exercise on Wednesday because of it.

"It's 10 laps every time one of our players misses a dunk,"

Harris said. "Dunks are crowd-pleasers, but they were kind of trying to get the crowd riled up."

No need for that, as the crowd was riled up and enthusiastic all night. There were people everywhere they could be placed in the gym, and parking spots were at a premium outside.

Wiley, Briggs and Johnny Lyons all missed dunks in the fourth quarter, but the matter was well in hand by then. The Trojans shot only 35 percent (30 of 86). Aaron Jones had a good game with 16 points off the bench and Clarence Williams had 14. But Jessie Leonard had another off-night shooting with only four points.

And the Devils convincingly defended their turf — at least for now.

"No question they're a great team," Eastington said. "It's too bad they have struggled the last couple of weeks because they are better than they had been showing. But we would like to see them again."

That would be in the Dupo

"That was the killer," Henson said. "That kinda put it out of reach for us."

If Coll's goal didn't put it out of reach, then Brad Smith's did. He got a pass at the left side of the net and deposited the puck high in the goal with 5:54 to play. Robertson picked up his third point and second goal of the night two minutes later to cut the Lancers' lead to 6-3. Mize then finished the scoring.

Despite some early lapses, the Warrior defense played a strong game and the Granite City penalty killing couldn't have been stronger. They shut down a team on the power play that had beaten powerhouse DeSmet a night earlier.

"We work hard on our penalty killing in practice," Henson said. "The big thing is to keep the box. If you don't start chasing them around and keep your box, that forces them to bad angles and behind the net. As soon as you start chasing, it breaks down and someone winds up wide open in front of your net."

Lancer coach Lou Struckman complimented Henson and the Warrior squad.

"Henson is doing a good job with his team," Struckman said. "He has got his kids working hard and skating well. That's the key in hockey."

The Warriors also lost on Monday, a 4-3 decision to Hazelwood East. Robertson scored early, but the Spartans led 4-1 until Grogan and Tommy Brown scored in the final minutes.

"We were buzzing all around their goal in the last few minutes, but their goalie, Jeff Bersman, was outstanding," Henson said.

The win clinched second place in the North Division for Hazelwood East behind the Warriors.

The Spartans are 11-4-3, 8-1-3 in the division. Granite City is 11-8, 10-2 in the division heading into the regular-season finale against Parkway Central at Queeny

AARON JONES had a good game for Madison, scoring 16 points against the Red Devils. Here he deflects Daryl Jackson's pass.
